JUUGE LAMBERT TREE TALKS

Opinions from Chairmen Dickinson and Harrity-Hon, A. O. Bacon and His Work for the National Committee.

Chicago, III., October 3 .- (Special.)-It now develops that Judge Gresham's in-tention to vote for Mr. Cleveland was known to several gentlemen in Chicago two weeks ago, and that he had about greed to write a letter, defining his position and giving his reason. Judge Gresham was not at home to those who called at his house yesterday. He dined at Judge Lambert Tree's residence last night. Other guests were Franklin McVengh and John W. Doane. The distinguished jurist persisted in his determination not to see representatives of the press. Judge Tree was asked: "Do you know whether the report published this morning, that Judge Gresham would vote for Cleveland, is correct?"

"Judge Gresham told me." the ex-minister to Belgium replied, "that he intended to vote for Cleveland and to support him. I feel at liberty to make that statement because Judge Gresham has been out-spoken about it and it is not a matter of confidence. He states freely his intention to vote for Cleveland."

"Are his reasons personal or political?" "So far as I know, they are not per-sonal. He supports Cleveland because for a long time his convictions have led his to be a firm believer in the correct ness of the principle of tariff reform, and because he is opposed to the doctrine of protection as now maintained by the republican party.

HOW RECEIVED IN NEW YORK-

Don Dickinson and Chairman Harrity Talk

New York, October 3.—(Special.)—At democratic he-dquarters, national and state it was given out that the akurnishing of this campaign was over, and from now until election day there will be only hot fighting all along the line.

until election day there will be only hot fighting all along the line.

The time has come for pressing the fight. With the election only five weeks off the managers of both democratic headquarters express themselves as well satisfied with the outlook, and they have carefully surveyed the field preliminary to bringing up the reserves for action.

The hardest fighting of the campaign is to be done in this state. The republicans are putting forth their best effort to capture the thirty-six electoral votes of the Empire State, but they have met more than they wish in the splendid democratic organization perfected by the democratic organization perfected by the democratic state and campaign committee. It is said that the republicans have $5,000,000 to spend in this state with the promise of more if it is needed. The democrats have less money but they are better organized and have better leaders.

As to Judge Gresham. Of the announcement of Judge Gresham's Intention to support Cleveland, National Committeeman Don M. Dickinson, chairman of the democratic national campaign com-mittee, said today: "Judge Gresham is one of the ablest men in the country, and with-

of the ablest men in the country, and with-al one of the purest and most patriotic. Knowing his character it seems to me that his declaration is natural and in accordance with the fitness of things."

When asked about the news of Judge Gresham's support of Cleveland and Ste-venson, Chairman William F. Harrity, of the democratic national committee replied:
"The accession to the support of Cleve-land and Stevenson of a statesman of so and and Stevenson of a statesman of so high character and so great influence, espe-cially in the hotly contested western states, caunot fail to have a very beneficial effect in all parts of the country, especially in view of the fact that in this matter Judge Gresham is a type of a numerous class, and his example is likely to be speedily followed by other men influential in public life."

Major Bacon's Good Work.

Major A. O. Bacon, who has been rendering most efficient service as one of the managers of the speakers' bureau of the national committee, has gone to Georgia, and may not return as he will soon be called to assume his legislative duties in the legislature. His service here has been valuable, as he was the chairman of the speakers' bureau in the last campaign.

The New York den ocrats are confidently looking for Georgia to lead off with an old-time loading majority for the democratic

EGG-THROWING IN RICHMOND.

General Weaver Meets with the Same Fat He Did in Macon.

Richmond, Va., October S.—General. Weaver and Field, third party candidates respectively, for president and vice-pres-ident of the United States, Mrs. Lease ident of the United States, Mrs. Lease, of Kansas, addressed a large audience tonight at Old Market hall, composed mainly of democrats. A goodly number of ladies were present. This accompanied with the fact that a lady was to make a political speech for the first time in the history of Richmond, doubtless accounted for the unusual good attention paid to the speakers in the building. Bad boys, however, on the outside were not so considerate, for a number of eggs, of uncertain age, made their appearance through the windows, to the consternation of the reporters.

BUCHANAN BEGINS HIS CAMPAIGN-

Be Talks About the Outlook and Thinks He'll Re Elected.

Bristol, Tenn., October 3.—(Special.)—The famous John P. Buchanan, people's party candidate for governor of Tennessee, spoke to about one thousand people at Blountsville today for two hours or more. He has just opened his campaign and stated that he would speak every day till the election. He gives the national banking system particular fits and says he is in favor of the government running the railroads.

When asked what majority Tennessee would give Cleveland, he astonished the questioner by replying that there was an unknown quantity in Tennesses politics and there was no telling how it would go.

"What will your majority over Judge Peter Turney be?"

"I can't tell, but it will be a majority."

He talked freely about the Coal Creek war. "An Alabama paper says the war will cost Tennessee $1,000,000; governor, how about it?"

"It will cost less that one hundred thous-

GOVERNOR TILLMAN WANTED. The Democrats of North Carolina Want Him to Help Them Out.

Columbia, S. C., October 3.—(Special.)—
The influence of Governor Tillman on the masses has evidently impressed itself on the democratic authorities of North Carolina. Today the governor received urgent letters from the national committee and from the North Carolina committee asking him to wake several spacehes in North Carolina committee asking him to wake several spacehes in North Carolina. him to make several speeches in North Car-

It is stated that the people's party is causing the democrats much anxiety in that state, that the majority of the latter is very small and that if Tillman spoke there he could reach a class of voters that the others could not reach.

The governor said tonight that he had his hands full, but that if he could squeeze in a couple of days in North Carolina this month that he would do so.

Bristol, Tenn., October 3.—(Special.)—A well-known gentleman from Franklin county, Virginia, who arrived in the city today, tells a population steer.

known gentleman from Franklin county, Virginia, who arrived in the city today, tells a romantic story.

Salem Wade is a negro who has spent the past thirty-five years in the state of Georgia. Long before the war his master, a cruel man, sold him to a slave-owner of the south because the negro had committed some trivial offense. His wife belonged to the owner of another plantation, and they were thus separated. They never heard from each other.

After the negroes were freed Salem remained in the south supposing his wife was dead. Last week he decided to visit his old home. To his joy his wife was found, though bent with age. She is seventy-six and he is eighty-one years old. They had not met for thirty-five years.

He went at once to a high cliff where he had hid a stone pitcher filled with $600 in silver. It was still there. That, with the small amount his wife had sayed, will keep them the rest of their lives.

C, is stricken in His Chair.

Charleston, S. C., October 3.—(Special.)—
The sudden death today of Mr. J. S. Terry, a prominent business man here, has caused a shock to the community. He went to his place of business as usual this morning apparently in the best of health and, as was his habit, was sitting in the front of his establishment conversing with some one, when he complained of having a pain in his head, which increased until it drew from him the exclamation, "Oh, I'm dying." His som went to his assistance immediately, and seeing that he was very ill and getting unconscious, procured a carriage and removed him to his residence, where he died in difteen minutes.

Mr. Terry was born at Southwood, on Long Island, New York, and came to Charleston many years ago to work for his uncle, who was engaged in business. The uncle died and left his business to the nephew, who carried it on successfully until his sudden death. At one time he was a member of the firm of Terry & Nolan, which was dissoired by the death of the latter. Some years ago he was a member of the firm of J. S. Terry & Co, whose New York branch was Hunt & Voorhees.

BURNED BY GASOLINE.

Herrible Death of a Hotel Proprietor in Yankton, N. D., October 3-Charles Winchip, proprietor of the Ssaal hotel in this city, was burned to death by an explosion of gasoline today. He was sprinkling gas-oline on the floor of a small room to exterminate bedbugs. The room is just off the hotel kitchen and the explosive vapor gener-ating in the room pervaded the kitchen, where a gasoline stove was burning. The atmosphere in the kitchen first took fire and the flames rushed to the small room. An explosion followed and a few minutes after Winchip ran from the hotel into the open air with every particle of his clothing burned away, his hair gone and his cwn flesh actually smouldering. Every particle of his body was burned to bleeding blisters and he endeavored to find relief by jumping into a tub of swill and then rolling in the dust. He had inhaled the burning gasoline and early in the evening died.

Wilmington.

Wilmington, N. C., October S.—(Special.)—
Six bodies, supposed to be those of sailors, washed ashore Friday on the beach at Little River, S. C., forty miles south of the mouth of Cape Fear river. They were lashed to a raft made of spars and were in an advanced stage of decomposition, the head and one arm of one of the men being off. Some wreckage came ashore and it is supposed that some vessel foundered off the coast, but nothing was found about the wreckage to indicate the name of vessel or fate of crew. Some anxiety is fels here concerning the schooner, R. i. S. Graham, which sailed for Wilmington from Port Royal, S. C., September 20th with phosphate rock.

The hall was handsomely decorated with American flags and bunting together with portraits of the national candidates. Before the opening of the convention the orchestra played patriotic airs.

The executive committee of the state league met in Chickering hall at 10 o'clock to give final touches to the convention arrangements. Mr. W. D. H. Cleveland Will Welcome Them.

It was announced this morning that Chauncey F. Hlack and Mr. Washington would escort ex-President Cleveland to the Academy of Music tomorrow morning. His speech, it is sald, will be one of welcome, and will not deal largely with the issues of the campaign. Speeches will be made by Mr. Black, General Pat Collins, of Hoston, and many others who are not down on the programme. One thousand delegates have so far sent their credentials to national association headquarters. The rest will come with their credentials in their pockets. All democratic clubs in the city will throw open their doors to entertain the visitors.

The convention was called to order by John Boyd Thatcher, president of the lesgue. He was received with applause and his reference to the growth and work of the called forth enthusiastic demonstration.

At each mention of Cleveland's name the delegates applauded. Applause also greeted reference to the Tariff in Mr. Thacker's address. While he was speaking more delegates arrived, but the attendance was not as large as was expected.

Messrs. Degan, Cross, Fallon and Healy were appointed committee cn credentials. Mr. Cox then read the platform. It was a document of some length. Firm belief was expressed in the tariff revision, as absolutely necessary to the continued prosperity of the country. The great need was a larger export market. Tariff reform on logical lines, was the only policy that would secure such a market. The cost of the necessities of life should be reduced. The principles embodied in the force bill, were believed to be fraught with the greatest danger of the nation. It would have a degrading tendency. It was asserted that the life of the country depended on the continuation of that adjustment between local authority and federal power, so loag preserved and insisted upon by the democratic party. The force bill was a measure not only for the south but the whole country. David Martin and M. S. Quay, with their methods were roundly denounced. The resolution described Martin, by quoting the alleged words of one of his associates, "A disreputable rascal, a ruffian at the polls, a manipulator of hallot boxes, a dispenser of corruption funds, a winning tool of that element in the social life of Philadelphia which defies law, order and decency."

utmost exertion by the third party element in the county.

A notable feature of the campaign has been the excellent stumping of the county for the democratic cause, by some young men who vote Wednesday for the first time. The third party realizing the hopelessness of their cause, have placed in the field no county ticket, but will use all of their influence for Peek and the state ticket. It has been difficult from the first for the third party to effect an organization in this county, so true has it been to the principles of democracy. The executive committee of the people's party of this congressional district met here in May and attempted to organize a people's party, but failed.

After Mr. McCandless of Butts, had thoroughly canvassed the entire district and notified those in favor of the third party movement to meet in Griffin on a certain day, Colonel Peek was invited to address them.

A third party was then organized consisting of ten members. It hasn't increased very much since although numbers of other fiery speakers have been sent into this field. Among them was "Cyclone" Davis whose speech was noted principally for its leagth, three hours and a quarter. And last of all came H. L. Loucks of Huron, South Dakota, president of the National Alliance and Industrial union. He addressed a small audience here Saturday, but seems to have failed to ald the third party interests.

Nevel Peck and Cyclone Davis reached Actonion Stunday night from Conyers. Their arrival was not greeted with any demonstration, nor was there a soul to meet them at the train.

For the last two weeks Davis has been extensively advertised, but lo and behold! when today arrived there appeared on the scene only seven or eight third party people. At 11 o'clock a large crowd of democrats repaired to the court house to listen to Davis. When Peck rose to introduce Davis loud cries were sung out for "Northen, Northen." Quiet reigned once more. Then the growd grew wild. Finally he introduced Davis. Davis was considerably put out by questions fired at him and which he failed to answer. The wet people expected to hold their neeting in the court house but they were closed out. Determined not to be outdone, two large lamps were placed in a drygoods box and Jack Carter, the Thomasville negro preacher, spoke from the courthouse steps to a crowd of negroes and white people.

The union cornet band and a delegation of citizens from Sarannah came up to attend the prohibition meeting. Among the speakers who addressed the meeting were Rev George McDonal, Rev. W. H. It is the old, old story. A young and pretty orphan girl, without friends or counselors, thrown upon her own resources to battle against the hardships of life and to guard against the enemy of defenseless woman, falls, and is the victim of the plausible, unscrupulous scoundrel.

Colle Fowler was a young woman of rare beauty. She had the form of Juno and her face was cameo-like in its loveliness. Chest-nut curls hung in unarranged profusion over an alabaster brow, and from beneath the long eyelashes peeped brown eyes in whose depths lurked love and tenderness. Many an admiring glance was case upon this beau-tiful girl when she walked down Main

Miss Fowler's real name was Hoofid, but being left an orphan at an early age she was adopted by the Fowlers, with whom she remained until recently.

A year or two before her death she was introduced to Colonel J. H. Morrow, a member of the Washington Racing Association, and a prominent figure in turi circles. Colonel Morrow is a tall, ruddy-complexioned man, and wears a gray wig. He is about sixty years old.

Morrow and Miss Fowler soon became very intimate, so much so as to excite remark, and it was not long before the tongue of gossip was wagging freely.

Miss Fowler's adopted parents objected to this intimacy, but the young lady would not yield. She accordingly left them and took up quarters at a boarding house. She began work as a compositor on The Evening Recogd.

In the early morning of June 14th the community was shocked at hearing that this beautiful young woman was dead. Herphysician certified that she died from yellow jaundice, and the death that had cloaked her sin was about to shield and cover up her betrayer.

Then came the greater shock. Before the body could be laid away in the grave, came the suspicion that Miss Fowler had been the victim of criminal malpractice. The aid of the law was invoked to unravel the mysterious circumstances surrounding her death, and under advice from the attorny the victim of criminal malpractice. The aid of the law was invoked to unravel the mysterious circumstances surrounding her death, and under advice from the attorney general the coroner refused to allow the body to be interred and began an inquest.

A post mortem examination was made by several of the most distinguished physicians in town and their report stated that the girl's death was the result of malpractice. The jury found a verdict to the effect that Colle Fowler came to her death from the effects of blood poisoning superinduced by abortion, brought about by the deceased by some means or medicines, and that J. H. Morrow was accessory before the fact.

At the inquest, Mr. A. W. Clayton, proprietor of The Evesing Record, for whom Miss Fowler was working, testified that Miss Fowler had showed him some letters from Morrow in which it was suggested that in view of her condition she should take some pills that he would send. She afterwards told him that she had taken the pills and that she preferred death to exposure.

Mr. Clayton also produced Morrow's let-pills and that she preferred death to exposure.

Mr. Clayton also produced Morrow's letters to Miss Fowler. In one letter he writes as if he had a wife and a son in Illinois, that his wife had gotten a divorce, but that it had been fixed in such a way that Morrow 'had to appear in person in Illinois for a separation and $300, and at the expiration of six months he could get out by depositing $300" The letter stated that he had "made application and given bond for the amount and costs." In the same letter Morrow declares that he "certainly would go crazy or take his own life" and that he was "ready to sacrifice his life and everything on carth for her."

When Miss Fowler died. Morrow was in Washington and he telegraphed to Clayton "don't delay the funeral." Morrow did not appear here and search was made for him. Washington detectives were put on his track, and finally, on the 24th of August, he was captured in Rockville, Md.

It has been hinted that some material facts are being held back in reference to the case, and it is said that Colonel Morrow will implicate other persons.

When visited in inil Morrow and that he had hoped to keep this a secret until the case was concluded. He stated that he never intended to remain with this charge permanently hanging over him and that he had made no effort to conceal his identity. "I am," said he, "entirely innocent, and when the case is investigated it will be established."

Another Suicide in Savannab.

Another Suicide in Savannah.

Savannah, Ga., October 3.—(Special.)—
This morning Patrick Igo, sixty-five years old, committed suicide by shooting himself in the head. The act was the result of despondency aggravated by drink. He got up at an early hour and secured a pistol from under the pillow of a man sleeping in the same room. This is the fourth suicide in this city within a very short time.

Killed in a Prize Fight. Killed in a Prize Pight.

Sloux City, Ia., October 3.—William Duffy, better known as "Billy the Kid," was knocked out at Pashion theater last night, a notorious resort in Covington, Neb., by Jack Keere, a heavy-weight, after an easy five-round centest, and died within an hour afterwards. Keefe and all the seconds are under arrest awaiting the decision of the coroner's jury.

WILL OPEN TODAY.

The Southern Medical College Will Begin

The opening exercises of the fourteenth session of the Southern Medical college will occur this morning at 11 o'clock at the lecture room of the college. The principal feature will be the opening lecture by Dr. T. S. Pewell, president of the college. The public generally are invited.

The regular schedule of lectures begins tomorrow morning.

The regular schedule of petutes beginning will be the most prosperous in attendance; the greater number of whom will take their first course.

The college is fully equipped in every detail and from all appearances the year just beginning will be the most prosperous it has ever experienced.

THERE ARE TWO MARTIN'S.

Be Certain That the Right One Is On You

There are two Martins running for the legislature in Fulton county, One is Edmusi W. Martin, the democrat, who has already served in the state legislature most efficiently and who has been nominated by the democrats for a second term.
The other is a republican who has allowed mader Colonel A. E. Buck, and Francisco React Point.

This mixing of men on the third party ticket has been quietly done to catch a fusion vota. It is becoming the policy of third party men everywhere and the leading democrats should warn the voters of such methods.

Another Victory for Garrett.

Judge Marshall J. Clarke yesterday refused to sign an order removing the Atlanta and Florida railroad case to the United States circuit court.

This road after being in the hands of a federal court receiver for some time in Macon, was finally turned over to J. W. Garrett, tha receiver appointed by Judge Clarke.

Its friehas thought that all controversy was passed, but the Central Trust Company of New York being unwilsing to have the railroad remain in the state court petitioned the court of dismiss the bill and discharge the receiver on the ground that it was entitled to the property.

on the ground that it was entitled to the property.

The cours refused to do this and the next move was to petition the court for a removal to Judge Newman's court on the ground that the Central Trust Company was a foreign corporation and was entitled to move the case. Judge Clarke decided yesterday that the case must remain before him, it not being such a case as could be removed. This apparently ends the matter so far as the receivership is concerned. Judge Tompkins represents the Central Trust Company and Payne & Tre the receiver for the Atlanta and Florida Raliroad Company.

His Last Visit to Atlanta

Not more than five years have passed since the upturned faces of 10,000 people gazed lovingly into the eyes of the old chieftain. It seemed that day as if the heart of the multitude was actually on fire and when that superb old cavalier, General Longstreet, appeared on the plat-form, with his battered sword dangling from his belt, the very air was uplifted by the shout of the multitude as it rose from their midst and floated out to the oaks that flaunted their foliage over the battle ield beyond the city.

It was during the month of May and not a cloud obscured the firmament. The schools were deserted of their pupils and the children went out over the city to rob the flower gardens and the green houses. They worked the blossoms thus gathered into garlands that seemed to pilfer their own fresh young beauty, and running in advance of the horses, they showered their tribute of childhood along the path of the Mothers wept around the platform and fathers looked on in a mist of revery that seemed to lose their souls in the past. Suddenly the musical voice of Henry Grady, went out to hear of the multitude, and stirred the bosom of the gathered soldiery with a feeling too deep for plaudits. It glowed with the fervor of the noonday sun and seemed to catch its beauty from the calendar, that hung its drapery upon the trees.

Henry Grady's Welcome. Mr Grady turned to Mr. Davis and said:-

"It is good, sir, for you to be here. Other leaders have had their triumphs, conquerors have worn crowns, and honors have been piled on the victors of earth's great battles, but never yet, sir, came man to more loving people. Never conqueror wore prouder diadem than the deathless hat crowns your gray hairs today. Never king inhabited more splendid palace than the millions of brave hearts in which your dear name and fame are forever enshrined. Speaking to you, sir, as the son of a confederate soldier who sealed his devotion with his life,—holding kinship through his blood to you and yours,—stand-ing midway between the thinning ranks of his old comrades whose faltering footsteps are turned towards the grave, and the new generation thronging eagerly to take the work that falls unfinished from their hands, here is the auspicious present across which the historic past salutes a glorious future,—let me pledge you that the leve we bear you shall transmitted to our children and our children's children, and that generations yet unborn shall in this fair land hold your memory sacred and point with pride to your lofty and stainless life. My countrymen (turning to the crowd), let us teach the lesson in this old man's life that defeat hath its glory. Let us declare that this outcast from the privileges of this great government is the uncrowned king of your people and that no southern man, high or humble, desires a greater glory than to bear with him heart to heart, blame and the burdon of the cause for which he stands unpardoned. In dignity and honor he met the responsibility . In obscurity and poverty he has borne for twenty years the reproach of our enemies and the obloquy of defeat. This movement finds its richest reward in the fact that we can light with brave women, the light and soul and crown of our civilization, rise up and give your hearts voice, as we tell Jefferson Davis that he is at home among his people."

That welcome was a pearl of oratory, and when the last sentences ran out from the lips of the eloquent speaker the crowd rose up like a trained army at the cry of their captain. The tumult gathered like thunder and the shout of mingled voices was like the roar of ocean billows. But was like the roar of ocean billows. But instantly the noise grew quiet, and like the waves of lake Yenessaret that slept in silence when the storm was chastened, the voice of the "old man eloquent" swept over the crowd and their ears were immediately couched into listening.

The Old Man Returns Home. But the day with its fever and excitement closed, although the sun seemed reluctant to touch the horizon and to quiet the supremacy of a day so undisputed by clouds and so rich in its revelations. The night, however, with its return of stars drew up as the day expired and the moon, like a silver bow, displayed its cres-cent in the west. A lovelier night never followed the skirts of a fairer day, and men as they walked the streets in the gathering twilight remarked to each other, "was the sky ever more beautiful?"

When the sun arose the following day there was a cloud in the east as Mr. Davis drew out from the carshed and wafted by the love and the sighs of his people went back to his home in Mississippi.

Flowers were thrown in the path of the engine wherever it paused and hundreds rushed out from the heart of the country to shower their roses about the feet of the of their lips that Mr. Davis was still the

To come to the point, it is hard to define just where sickness begins and health ends. Small things denote sometimes great disasters. A little sick headache; you did not sleep well last night; maybe you are nervous, out of temper; you are a little dyspeptic; food does not set well. Remove the cause to-day. You can do it absolutely if you will take Johann Hoff's Malt Extract with your meals. You can get it at any drug-store, but you will have to be careful and not have imitations paimed off on you. When the old chieftain lay shrouded in New Orleans each state in the south dis-puted the right to treasure his dust, and even before his ashes were laid away in their tomb, they warred in unseemly strife over his body. It was only the affectionate show, however, that was made by those states to prove which one of them loved him best-for there was not a state in the south that would not gladlynay, even fondly— have opened her bosom and given the old man a sepulchre in her

Scarcely three summers have now trailed their blossoms over his tomb and gilded with their beautiful sunshine the marble sleep of the old hero, and yet the question asked, implying a doubt, will the south build him a monument? It Will Be Erected. Build him a monument! That she will, and if love could be the architect and was as imperial as affectionate, it would rise to a sculpture of pure gold and would soar beyond the flight of the eagle. She will build it if her women have to immolate their jewels and her children trudge barefooted to school in the heart of midwinter. She will build it out of her own marble and she will employ her own build-ers. Not a man should touch it who does not approach it as he would an altar, and who does not build it with clean hands and with a spirit as pure as that which lurks

Virginia Deserves It. There is no fitter soil upon which the monument could stand than the soil of old Virginia—bathed in the blood of every state and freighted with the dust of every village. There is no fitter atmosphere in which it could lift its head than the air of historic Richmond, sweetened by the ex-ultant hopes and saddened by the last despair of the old confederacy. Along the sweep of the Rappahannock and in the solitudes of the forest through which the autumn winds are today sighing, sleep the soldiers of every state, and among them are the martyred children of Georgia.

No man, certainly no soldier nor the son of a soldier, should curb his liberality because the monument will be erected in Virginia. Virginia is entitled to the monument because she suffered the worst, and because, in addition to Lee and Jackson, she gave to the lost cause both its cradle and its se-

A contribution that is even tainted by envy of Richmond should not be allowed to swell the fund that will represent the free gift of the southern people.

There Is No Disloyalty. The question may be asked is there any dialoyalty in such a movement? There is none expressed and equally there is none implied. It is only the record of his life that his people desire to preserve and that includes every one of his battles in Mexico. It will be conceded that had he fallen then a stee would have mourned his loss and nation would have mourned his loss and the flowers of every section would have mingled their fragrance over his grave. Did providence spare such a life for treason? Never! Nor is it treason that the south incends reward. She merely seeks to honor the courage, the fidelity and the sufferings and who may have been better, but was certainly no worse than her people.

of that pile that is rising in honor of General Grant. She not only subscribes her good will but has added by her contributions more than a single inch to its height. She only asks in return for the privilege, ested, of doing honor to her dead, and she pledges that as soon as the column is high enough to cast a shadow she will dedicate it with the national anthem to Everybody Should Help.

The monument as now contemplated will cost in the neighborhood of $250,000.

If every man, woman and child in the south subscribes a copper cent the aggregate will be sufficient to erect the monu-

If everybody who is able to work and to earn a livlihood will contribute a quarter towards the enterprise it will be more than enough to build it.

enough to build it.

The fame of Mr. Davis is the common property of his people, and the enterprise of building the monument should be so directed that the poor as well as the rich should aid in the contribution. The deeds to the monument should not be given to a few trustees, but to the whole people and the titles to the magnificent pile should be divided among the inhabitants of every town and village in the south.

Subscriptions to the fund should be sent to Judge W. L. Calhoun, who is Georgia's representative on the general committees and who is authorized to solicit and receipt for contributions.

An Appeal to Georgians.
Georgia is expected to contribute at least $50,000 towards the enterprise.
She is the Empire State of the south and can afford to pay it without the slightest tax upon her resources. There is not a richer state in the south, and with her forests of gold and copper and iron stretching away in the glow of her Indian summer, she can pay it as easily as she can haul her produce to market.

Already the promise of a splendid harvest is written in every field, and if Georgia fails to devote a large part of her crop to the building of the Davis monument the inference will be that her great soul has shrunken, and, like the foolish brother of Jacob, she has sold her birthright for a

Jacob, she has sold her birthright for a mess of pottage.

But Georgia will do her part, and if she fails to roll up $50,000 for the monument there are men in her borders who will make up for the difference.

Let the Mississippi river, as it flows by the grave of the old hero, gathering the contributions of every mountain spring as it flows in majestic silence to the gulf, be the type of that other current that will flow to the base of his monument, gathering its tribute from every heart as it beats in the crowded city and umong the mountain pines and rippling as it flows in the beautiful melody of southern lips.

WILL MANGUM CONFESSES THE FORGERY

And Seems Deeply Orestfallen at His Bad Break-He Is Locked Up at the Police Station.

Over again the old, and ever sad story of a young man's downfall was told at the police station last night in the case of Will Mangum.

The young man, with head bowed down, and face crimson with a sense of his dishonor, was locked in a cell throughout the night, a prisoner within a few squares of his father's splendid home, and among the people who have known him all his life and respected him.

signed by his uncle, Mr. A. M. Bergstrom, in payment and received in money the difference between the amount of his check—$75—and his purchases $20.

Mr. Hirsch accepted the check without a suspicion of forgery but a few hours later by some casual inquiry it was learned that the check was bogus.

Immediately Police Captain Thompson was asked to look out for young Mangum. He watched all out-going trains; sent telegrams to various points over the state asking the authorities to look out for Mangum.

ing the authorities to look out for Manguin.

Upon inquiry at the union ticket office it was learned that Manguin had been in the office but bought no ticket. The ticket agent had however, cashed a check for Manguin signed by Mr. W. E. Hanye, an uncle of Manguin, which called for $25. The check was shown Mr. Hanye and he pronounced it a forgery.

Sunday morning a telegram was received from Chief of Police Hood of Augusta, announcing that he had Manguin under arrest. Yesterday afternoon Police Sergeant Ozburn returned from Augusta with Manguin, having been sent there Sunday afternoon to bring the prisoner back.

The gentlemen who were victimized by the two forgeries announce that they will prosecute the young man.

May Be Adopted on a Majority of Votes Cast for It. Augusta, Ga., September 2.—(Special.)—Your correspondent in conversation with William H. Fleming today upon the proposed amendments to the constitution to be voted on next Wednesday, learned a fact of much interest and practical importance.

voted on next Wednesday, learned a fact of much interest and practical importance. He said:

"It does not require a majority of votes cast in the election to ratify an amendment to the constitution, and only a majority of electors voting thereon, that is, on the amendment. In other words to state an extreme case, either one of the proposed amendments would be ratified if only one vote were cast against it."

Mr. Fleming says:

"I called attention to this in a debate in the house last session."

Mr. Fleming added:

"The practical bearing is that if a long ticket with all the amendments set out thereon would, for any cause, be objectionable to any class of voters, or be deemed inadvisable amendments, may be left off entirely without necessarily affecting the result or endangering their ratification."

"Of course," he says, "any voter. who especially desires to cast his ballot for or against any amendment can select a proper ticket. Those who are indifferent on the subject can vote the short ticket without doing any harm in one way or the other."

A Big Day in Lincoln.

Lincolnton, Ga., October 3.—(Special.)—
This will be a memorable day in the history of old Lincoln. General Gordon, Major W.
T. Gary and Bill Truitt made democratic speeches to 600 people, more than five hundred of whom were democrats.

This was General Gordon and Major Gary's first appearance before a Lincoln county audience, and both were given genulne ovations. Gordon spoke for more than two hours and literally tore the third party platform to pleces. His speech was pronounced one of the best ever delivered here.
The people fairly went wild with enthusiasm and Gordon's name is on every tongue.
Major Gary captivated our people by his eloquence and sound reasoning. His arguments were unanswerable and will do much to bring wanderers back to the democratic

TALKING OF WATER. AFTER TWO DECADES

The People of Athens Still Discussing A Prominent Citizen of White County the Situation.

CLARKE IS READY FOR WEDNESDAY.

the State-Death of a Veteran Notes and Personals.

Athens, Ga., October 3.—(Special.)—The water question is still much discussed. It is generally believed that an ffort will be made to prohibit the issuence of the bonds again, and injunction proceedings may be commenced in the courts any lay.

This is a very serious matter and the commenced in the courts any lay.

This is a very serious matter, and the whole populace is very much excited over the unfavorable status of affairs. The city may succeed in abolishing its contract with the Athens Water Company, but it will put them to some trouble to do it from present indications.

Waiting for Wednesday.

Everything is being changed up for Clark.

Everything is being shaped up for Clark county and Athens to roll up a great dem-county and Athens to roll up a great democratic victory on Wednesday.

All the stores in the city will be closed up all day and business in every branch will be suspended. Tomorrow night a grand open-air rally will be held on Broad street, at which Hon. W. B. Burnett, Hon. James Lyle, Hon. E. T. Brown, Tom Mills and Mr. J. W. Reed will deliver ringing democratic addresses.

The third party is rallying its forces, and making a great effort to elect its legislative candidate, Mr George P. Brightwell; and while Colonel Morton will be elected by a saf majority, 'he people's party will poil more votes than it is generally believed they will, and will make the contest close enough to be very interesting.

Mr. Clem Ashford is over from Oconee today and says that things are extremely warm in Watkinsville. He is sure however that by hard work, the county will go democratic by a safe majority.

A Veteran's Death.

Uncle Peter Culp, a venerable gentleman nearly ninety years old, died at noon today.

There was not a better known man in this portion of the state than Peter Culp. He was ever aggressive, active and outspoken, and in the latter years of his life he developed into a local newspap. writer of considerable note and favor. His writings were mainly on local and religious topics, but were very forcible, philosophical and in the plainest kind of English.

Mr. Culp leaves a host of relatives and friends who are deeply grieved over his loss. His death removes another old citizen from the Classic City, and one of the most original and picturesque characters that ever every day and this will be the largest class for years.

There were sacred services at the Lucy Cobb institute last night, which were largely attended.

Mrs. T. L. Gantt has opened her elegant new hotel, the Central house, and is doing a fine business already.

Judge George C. Thomas has, just returned from a visit to southeast Georgia, and says that the political situation there is very interesting. He says a majority and a large one, too, of the negroes will vote with the third party.

CEDARTOWN'S BIG DAY. Dongressman Everett and Others Make Splen

Cedartown, Ga., October 3.—(Special.)— The biggest political meeting that has or will occur during this campaign, took place will occur during this campaign, took place Saturday in Cedartown. It was the last grand rally before the battle of next Wednesday, and the democratic hosts of Polk were gathered together in a vast assemblage. There was a free barbecue and four hours of speaking, in which the third party men and democratic joined issue. It was a democratic gathering, but time was given the followers of Weaver.

Judge Maddox opsued in a short talk that made a good impression. J. S. Davitte, the third party candidate for the sente followed in an hour's attack on the Judge Maddox opened in a short talk that made a good impression. J. S. Davitte, the third party candidate for the senate, followed in an hour's attack on the democratic party. Hon. T. Warren Akin replied in a forty-five minute speech that was an able presentation of the situation. He was warmly congratulated at his conpusion. Then the barbecue followed. The trowd was estimated all the way from 1,500 to 2,500 people, and certain it is, that today witnessed one of the largest pebucal gatherings that Polk county ever had. It was a stunner and showed the faith which democrats have of the triumph of the party on Wednesday. The whites and blacks had separate tables, and several hundred negroes put themselves on record against the candidates of the third party. Colonel Miller A. Wright opened the ball in the afternoon and was followed by Congressman B. W. Everett in one of the finest speeches made here in years. It was a complete refutation of charges against democracy, and a masterly arraignment of the third party followers. The speech is pronounced unanswerable by those who heard it, and Colonel Everett has more friends in Polk today than ever before. He was tendered quite an ovation at the conclusion of his speech, a hundred citizens crowding upon the platform and shaking his hand and wild enthusiasm. It was a great speech for democracy, and Congressman Everett has done himself proud in his patriotic effort today.

Few such political meetings have ever been held in the historic seventh, and 'fom Watson's boasted rally does not approach it in numbers or result.

Arrested For Murder.

THE KILLING OF MR. DUKE PALMER

Recalled by the Arrest of Mr. Marcus Van-diver Twenty Years After the Orime Was Committed.

Gainesville, Ga., October 3.—(Special.)—Mr. Archer Burch, sheriff of Towns county, brought Mr. Marcus Vandiver, of White county, to Gainesville today and placed him in Hall county jail for safe keeping. A bill of indictment was found by the grand jury of that county last week charging Mr. Vandiver with the murder of Mr. Duke Palmer, a lawyer of Cleveland, which took place on or about the 5th of June, 1872. Mr. Palmer was a prominent and fearless attorney and was returning from Hiawassee by private conveyance and alone when he was bushwacked by some one on the side of the road.

Several parties have been arrested charged with the crime and all discharged. Now after twenty years have elapsed Mr. Vandiver is called upon to answer the heinous crime. He says that he is not guilty and will establish his innocence at the trial. He is forty-eight years old with a wife and nine children, and was born, reared and al-ways lived in White county. He served four years in the confederate army and it is said that he made a brave and gallant sol-dier. He is represented by Colonel Buck Candler, of Blairsyille, and Colonel W. T. Crane, of Clarksville, who will make appli-cation before his honor C. F. Wellborn at White superior court next week for bail.

Newspaper Changes In Augusta. Augusta, Ga., October 3.—(Special.)— Several changes will take place on The Augusta Evening Herald today. Colonel James R. Randall has resigned the editorial chair and he will be succeeded by Mr. W. C. Casey. Mr. Terry Sheron, who has been traveling for several years for J B. White & Co., has become interested in The Herald and will take charge of the business.

Aged One Hundred and Four.

Aged One Hundred and Four.

Adairsville, Ga., October 3.—(Special.)—
Mr. Ransom Turner, the oldest man perhaps in Georgia, was buried at Oothcalooga cemetery. He had passed the age of one hundred and four years. He was and has been living with his son, T. W. Turner, here for some years. When the forces were being raised by Jackson to go to New Orleans Mr. Turner was just two months too young. His brother went but died at Mobile on the way.

Death of Mr. George Goode

Toccoa, Ga., October 3.—(Special.)—Mr. George Goode, one of our oldest and most highly respected citizens is dead. He leaves three sons, Mr. E. L. Goode, one of our leading merchants; Mr. G. T. Goode, city recorder, and Rev. Flem Goode, of Franklin county, and several daughters to mourn his loss. He was interred at New Hope, ten miles from this place.

Savanush's Quarantine Lifted. Savannah, Squarantine Lifted.

Savannah, Ga., October 3.—(Special.)—In view of the recent—encouraging—reports from New York with regard to cholers, the sanitary board has lifted the quarantine restrictions that had been placed upon vessels from that port. Hereafter only those vessels on which there is sickness will be inspected.

It's an insult to your intelligence, but some uncoru-pulous dealers try it. For instance: you're suffering from some Skin, Scalp or Scrofu-lous affection, or are feeling "run-up," There's a torpid liver, impure blood, and all that may come from it.

You've decided, wisely, that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the medicine to help you. You know that it's guaranteed to do so, as no other blood purifier is.

If it doesn't benefit or cure, you get your money back.

Can you ask more?

But what is best for you to take isn't always best for the dealer to sell. He offers something that's "just as good," Is it likely? If the makers of a medicine can't trust it, can you?

If they can trust it, then why not guarantee it, as the makers of the "Discovery" do? The genuine sold only through authorized agents, at the uniform price of $1.00.

Beware of spurlous imitations or dilutions, offered at less prices.

Superior Value.

No other plasters have been produced which gain so many testimonials of high value as those continuously accorded to ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS, and the only motive for these exceptional commendations lies in the fact of their being a medicinal and pharmaceutical preparation of superior value.

Additional proof of the true value of ALLCOCK's POROUS PLASTERS, lies in the fact that they are being largely imitated by unscrupulous persons, who seek to deceive the public by offering plasters which they claim to be the "same," "equal," "as good," "better," "best porous plaster," etc., while it is in general appearance only that they resemble Allcock's. All of the so-called porous plasters are purchased by them at low rates for the purpose of substitution.

DRY GOODS.

There has been no season for the past five years as resplendent with pleasing new designs in Dress Goods as this, the Fall and Winter of 1892. The variety of shades and combinations is almost unlimited while many new fabrics have been produced in most pleasing effect.

The Jaquard Popline which has been introduced this fall is destined to be a prime favorite as it combines all of the rich effects of a brocade with the durability and services of a plain material and is made in over fifty designs and shades.

The novelty suits are of unusual richness and elegance in changeable reps, velvet, stripes, velours, cords and changeable cheviots.

Of course the ever popular and durable storm serge is still in vogue for traveling and street wear.

Some very rich novelties have been produced in black, silk embroidered figures and dots on plain grounds and an endless variety of brocades, stripes and plaids in all grades of solid black.

As a substitute for cloth (which is always elegant and popular) there is a new material a little lighter in weight and relieved by an almost invisible diagonal Wales twill. The light weight adapt it peculiarly to this climate. This material with the new shades of Camel's hair will constitute the leading fabrics worn this season.

ATLANTA, GA., October 4, 1892.

Only One Day More. Today is the last day of the state campaign!

Tomorrow will settle, not the resultthat is already known-but the size of Georgia's democratic majority.

We have urged upon our readers the importance of securing a big majority at this election. We have the votes and they should not be thrown away. The two great parties in the national campaign are now watching Georgia, and the size of her democratic majority tomorrow will be regarded as an indication of the attitude of two or three southern states in the November election. A small majority will encourage the opposition and depress our friends. On the other hand, a majority of 50,000 will cause a democratic uprising all over the continent and assure our victory in November.

Press these points briefly but earnestly upon your neighbors, and persuade them to turn out and vote.

You will lose nothing by going to the polls tomorrow. Business will be suspended, and the solid men in every community will be putting in their best work for Georgia.

Make a pull for 50,000 majority!

Remember that Georgia is the only October state with the exception of Florida, which holds her state election today. The peculiar nature of our campaign, and the activity of the third party here, have centered all eyes upon us, and little or nothing has been said about Florida, where the usual result is expected. With our state it is different. A strong effort has been made to convince outsiders that our tussle with the third party would be a hard one, and that it would materially reduce our majority.

We must go to the polls in force tomorrow and show the country that Georgia is still a democratic stronghold!

A True Allianceman's Advice. Captain Harry C. Brown's letter in another column should be read by every allianceman in Georgia. The writer is devoted to the alliance. He hoped through its educational work to see the farmers of the country throw off the yoke of plutocratic oppre He is still fighting it out on that line, but he cannot close his eyes to the fact that political agitation has nearly killed the alliance, while the new party assumes to be its executor, and the republican party stands waiting to be its legatee! Captain Brown makes the point clearly and strongly that the only hope of the people is in the success of democracy. The democratic plan of reviving the old state banks is far better than the third party's government land loan scheme which would simply build up a landed aristocracy, leaving the poor man out in the cold.

So, while he is in full sympathy with the third party in its struggle against monopoly, he declines to invite republican suc cess, with the force bill and the same old plutocratic system. It is a frank, manly letter, and we hope that it will be read by every farmer in

Will It Hurt?

A correspondent writes to ask us what effect the nomination of anti-democratic candidates by the Grace gang in New York will have on the presidential elec-

It is difficult to estimate the effect, since so much depends on the developments of the campaign. There is a theory entertained by some that the nomination of local candidates in opposition to the reg-ular democratic nominees will have a tendency to help Mr. Cleveland by bringing out a full democratic vote. This may be the effect, and then it may not. That this result is doubtful may be inferred from the attitude of The New York Times and The Evening Post. If anti-snapper opposition to the regular democracy were likely to help Mr. Cleveland, these enthusiastic mugwump sheet would be more than likely to favor it: but they have put themselves on record against it, and we must conclude that they regard it as a very doubtful experiment so far as Mr. Cleveland is con-

If our correspondent desires to know our own opinion, we may say to him very frankly that we do not think it will help Mr. Cleveland in New York city. It may not hurt him, and it certainly would not if Grace and his gang were real demo-crats, earnest and honest; but they are neither the one nor the other. There is not a man among them that would hes-itate to sell out Mr. Cleveland and the democratic party for the smallest local office. The whole truth is, deals of this sort are what they are out for. They know perfectly well that they have no chance in a fair contest against the democratic nominees for the assembly. Their weakness has been tested on more than one occasion, but if they are in a po to sell Cleveland votes for votes for ffices, there is the barest chance that they may elect a few candidates.

Mr. Cleveland recognizes the working ower of Tanmany and his recognition has put all the democratic forces-all the democratic machinery-in motion in his behalf. That is the situation in New York. The only note of discord comes from men who were wildly in favor of Mr. Cleveland a few months ago, and who are now as wildly anxious to sell him out for a few local offices.

We may state that Grace and his gang are not deceiving Mr. Cleveland and those who are closest to him. They are not taking any stock in the suggestion that opposition to the regular democratic nomnation will draw out a larger Cleveland vote, and they are more interested in the matter than Tammany. If Grace and his gang can get in a position where they will be able to sell Cleveland votes for republican votes for their candidates, they will not hesitate to engage in that traffic The question is, can Mr. Cleveland afford to lose these votes in the state of New York? We leave this problem to be figured out by those who have an aptness for this sort of work.

An Enthusiastic Rally Tonight. The Fulton county democracy will hold the last meeting, the last rally of the campaign, tonight, under the auspices of the county democratic executive committee. It is a purely home affair. The unterrified democracy of Fulton wants a final chance to get together before the election and turn loose some of their surplus enthusiasm and patriotism. Come out tonight and hear the oldfashioned Jeffersonian doctrines expounded by eloquent speakers-come out and make your cheers ring out the prophecy of Wednesday's victory. The boys will join hands tonight and renew their pledges to meet each other at the polls and bring their neighbors. It will be the last meeting of the campaign and it will be a hummer!

Several old war-horses will be on hand and a number of eloquent young champions will also be heard from. In our local columns will be found full particulars in regard to the time and place of meeting and the programme for the occasion

The county democracy will make the welkin ring tonight!

Who is Responsible?

The Raleigh State Chronicle has it on good authority that the editor of The Progressive Farmer boasted that when Weaver spoke at Greensboro, N. C., there were 500 pistols prepared to resent any insult offered him, and that when Weaver spoke at Raleigh there were 500 rifles ready for use had he been insulted.

The Chronicle naturally wants to know who carried the pistols and who had the rifles ready. It says:

Before General Weaver came to North Carolina, the Chronicle announced that when he did comb he could feel assured of safety. Such announcement was made, and such as-surance given, because we have no hesita-ion in testifying at all times to the law abidion in testifying at all times to the law andiing character of the people of the state. Now, when five hundred concealed pistod are carried to a public speaking in free North Carolina, we demand to know at whose instigation this reflection was put upon our people? And when so many rifles are hid convenient for handing the same inquiry is repeated with emphasis. Such conduct will not be allowed to pass unchallenged by the peaceful and law-biding citizens of North Carolina.

Our people may differ on political ques-tions, but the good citizens everywhere must feel an interest in promptly rebuking the pre-parations for armed violence we have indi-cated. General Weaver could live the bal-ance of his days. ance of his day' in North Carolina in the unmost safety, but no one can feel safe here long if the sentiment cultivated by the Progressive Farmer and its cowardly and sneaking counterpart, the Special Informer, gains the ascendency. We challenge the cause for the disparaging reflection upon the law-abiding character of North Carolina.

This note of warning is a timely one and will be indorsed by all good citizens. The democrats of the south would not harm a hair of Weaver's head. His recent tour has not provoked half the turbulence that attends an ordinary parliamentary election in England. Only a few weeks ago the venerable Mr. Gladstone was struck in the face by a flying missile Henry M. Stanley and his wife were almost mobbed at a public meeting, and Mrs. Cornwallis West was assaulted while electioneering for her husband. General Weaver has met nothing in the south to equal the violence habitually manifested in British politics, and the pretense that he is a persecuted man should be promptly exposed. The most contemptible part of the business is the willingness of some of this man's followers to provoke violence by assuming a threatening attitude, as in North Carolina. Such public enemies should be sternly rebuked, and our Raleigh contemporary is very properly running them to cover. Down this way we recognize the right of free speech, and no man will be harmed on account of his political opinions. Pistols and rifles are not needed at our public meetings, and those who encourage that sort of thing should be held up to the just scorn of their law-abiding neighbors.

Facts About Rural Mail Delivery. A correspondent asks us to state whether or not the experiment of free rural mail delivery has been tried.

Free delivery of mail in the rural districts of Great Britain has been successfully carried on for many years. In this country the experiment dates from the summer of 1890, when congress empowered the postmaster general to use $10,000 to ascertain the feasibility of extending free delivery to small towns and rural districts. The postmaster general in his report the following year said that he had tried the experiment in forty-six communities or mail districts. In seven months these forty-six offices cost for carriers $4,320.60. Turty-nine offices showed an increase of gross receipts amounting v-$6,213.49, and seven showed a decrease $6,213.49, and seven showed a decrease amounting to $707.39. Of this balance of increase in gross receipts to $5,500.10 the postmaster general attributes $4,655.60 to natural growth of the communities, and the remainder, $850.50 to the advantage of the free celivery service. Nearly all the postmasters in their reports to the department indorsed the new pl.m. and the postmaster general strongly advocates

These facts will doubtless satisfy on correspondent. The arguments in favor of the proposed reform have already been fully set forth in our columns.

It is to be hoped that our correspondent is mistaken. The democratic voters out in the country appear to fully appreclate the issues involved in this campaign, and we trust that they see the importance of carrying the state by a majority that will have a tremendous effect beyond our borders.

We look to the democrats in the farming districts for the heaviest vote that they have polled since the days of reconstruction. They now have the opportunity to materially aid in winning the presidential and congressional fight by rolling up a majority that will stimulate and inspire every democrat in the land from Cape Cod to the Golden Gate, and carry corresponding depression into the camp of the republicans.

The sturdy yeomanry of Georgia, the backbone of the commonwealth, should be heard tomorrow. We have a big mafority of democratic votes out in the county, and they will be needed Wadnes-

Barbarians In Massachusetts.

The Springfield Republican has recently been guilty of giving to the public a family secret, and the newspapers are commenting on it-some with astonishment. and others with all the signs of deepseated grief. The secret which The Republican has let out is that there are barbarians in Massachusetts-not the newfangled variety, with a veneering of civilization and plety on their manners, but the old-fashioned sort with blood and whisky in their eyes.

The Republican places these barbarians in the hills of Franklin county. It is not known-so the statement goeswhether these inhabitants are of the native New England stock, or people who have taken the places of the New Englanders. But it is vain to open the door of conjecture here. It must remain closed, for to those who know the possibilities of the native New England stock which are exactly those of the Anglo Saxon-it must be clear that the barbarians of Franklin and other portions of Massachusetts belong to the race and to

While some of the newspapers are sighing over the discovery, The Constitution is disposed to congratulate the country on it. The fact that there are barbarian in Massachusetts, where "there is urgent need of carrying the gospel and schoolbook, accompanied by the strong arm of the law," gives a refreshing unity to our current history. It takes New England out of the air, and places its feet in the common soil of humanity. It is an assurance that piety, scholarship, philan thropy, respectability and the literary art are not the result of inheritance nor of climate.

Long life to the barbarians! They strip from New England a slice of pharisaism s wide as Texas, and give her a touch of human nature that has long been needed to season the rank and disgusting Puritanism which figures as her chief charac teristic. Its meddlesomeness has long irritated the republic, and now the incor gruity of the barbaric element which appears as sharp as prickles on the nativo stock preserves the unities and provides compensation. It is as pleasing as an unexpected comic episode in a family melodrama, where the younger son burglarizes the house and murders his bed-ridden grandmother while the rest of the household is engaged in prayer.

With the barbarian in her midst, as it were, Puritan New England may be happy yet.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

A very amusing trial developed out of a suit of replevin for a dog brought by Dr. E. T. Brady against John A. Levi, in Justice Shannon's court, in Kansas City, Mo., recently. Both parties claimed the ownership of the dog. Dr. Brady's attorney, however, stated that they could prove the claimantahip beyond doubt by the recognition of the dog for Mrs. Brady, and she was accordingly summoned. The animal immediately jumped from his place in the prisoner's dock and showed with every demonstration of caning joy his recognition of his mistress. In consideration of the adverse testimony this was still not convincing to the judge, so Mrs. Brady said that if she would sing a certain song the animal, in response to his training.

To make the collision more realistic he would have the engineers jump just in time to save their lives. It is his opinion a real railroad wreck would be an attractive spectacle. The engineer is still looking for a backer.

This number has increased until the last ion there were one hundred students and this year there will be even more. This fact means more to Atlanta than appears at first sight. It is calculated by the faculty that that number of pupils who take the course of five months spend annually in Atlanta $30.000. In 1859 he moved to Georgia. He has won all the honors which the profession of dentistry affords.

Dr. Carpenter says that the college is more thorough than most of the dental col-leges in the country. The course is now three years and every branch of the learning necessary to make a well trained dentist necessary to make a well trained dentist is fully taught both by theory and practice. Georgia is proud of the brilliant services of her distinguished son, the associate justice of the supreme court of the United States, Judge L. Q. C. Lamar. Judge Lamar is a native of Georgia and an hono graduate of Emory college. His boyhoo was spent in this state, but after reachin his maturity he emigrated to Mississippi and has since been known as the honored rep-resentative of that state.

Immediately after moving to Mississippi he became a professor of mathematics and English in one of her leading colleges. Shortly afterwards he entered the war and distinguished himself for his gallant services. He entered the legislature and came a prominent figure in the political life of Mississippi. Honors awaited the efforts of the young Georgian and he was soon voted a seat in the senate of the United

While there he pronounced his celebrated eulogy upon the life and character of Mr. Sumner, of Massachusetts. It was a grand oration and coming from the lips of a man who was southern to the core, it was a revelation to the entire north and did more to harmonize the sections than the utter-ances of any public man. He acquired the soubriquet of the "polished and gentle La-mar." Though quiet and gentle in his ordi nary conversation and in his daily relation-ships with men, he is like a mountain torrent when aroused and scarcely retains a vestige of his former identity. He usually begins his speeches in a calm and dignified manner, but if the speech is one of unusual importance he soon launches out into the of a masterly and magnetic eloqu The transforming power of his oratory is such that when fully aroused by the fervor of his grand thoughts, he towers almost godlike in his massive presence and his voice assumes the tone of a thunder storm.

No man has ever distinguished himsel in the use of invective like Judge Lamar. After scoring a senator for what he consid ered a flagrant abandonment of principle and characterizing his actions in very caus tic language, he turned to him with a finger of scorn and said: "Sir, you have heard what I have said-no good man wor serve it and no brave man would take it." Speaking of the criticism and censure that were heaped upon Jefferson Davis unjustly he gave utterance from his seat in the United States senate to that magnificent figure that is destined to live forever. en feet in the air, and towering like a divine Colossus, "when the lion of the plain has fallen, it is not the eagle, proud bird of the mountains, that sweeps down upon him mountains, that sweeps down upon him through the air and plucks away his vitals but the carrion vulture." It produced a profound impression and was never so by the rgandest effort of Macaulay.

Judge Lamar is now in declining health and the fear of his friends is that his signal abilities and his stainless life and character will not long be associated with the bench which he now so gracefully adorns. He has many friends and relatives in Georgia who wish him abundant prosperity and who devoutly pray that since he carries wisdom in one hand he will also carry "length of days" in the other. He has a warm place in his heart for Georgia—the home of his early boyhood—and when the wasting cares of his busy life have at last finished their corroding effect, he will desire to sleen in her hills and wait for his final reward among the bloom of her roses.

"The reply of Mr. Atkinson, chairman of the democratic state committee, to the demand of Mr. Irwin, chairman of the state committee of the people's party, for an equal division of the managers of the state election will be very generally regarded by fair-minded men as being in every respect an appropriate one. Mr. Irwin based his demand on the assumption that the managers appointed in accordance with the law would not be fair and honest in the discharge of their duties. This assumption Mr. Atkinson very naturally repels with considerable emphasis. He declares there is nothing either in the history of the state or in the character of her people to justify it. Mr. Irwin addressed a letter to Governo Northen similar to the one addressed to Mr. Atkinson. He knew, of course, that neither of these gentlemen is clothed with the anthority he asked them to exercise. They certainly would not undertake to exercise such authority without the right to do so. Any interference on their part with the local authorities who, under the law, appoint the managers, would be a reflection on the integrity and good faith of those authorities."

A RINGING LETTER.

A True Allianceman Points the Farmers to Their Only Hope.

Editor Constitution.—For many monthal I have been entirely out of political and have resolved to keep out of political controversy and political strife, but there are some things now transpiring which I cannot allow to pass by unnoticed without a sense of duty undischarged. I am an allianceman in the true sense of the word and believe more firmly than ever in their doctrines of "equal rights to all and special privileges to none." This motto is a constitutional one, and when that sentence was written it was but an echo of the sentiment of our forefathers when they adopted that constitution, which guarantees to every American citizen full protection in "life, liberty and property." What honest man can ast more?

property." What honest man can ask more?

It is useless for me to say that the government has long ago departed from that promise. When the government levies a tax upon imports which is beyond the demands of an economical administration and fattens the already too fat manufacturer on the one hand, while it oppresses the consumer on the other; when it farms out the issue of currency to the bondholders through the national banking system and laces a tax of 10 per cent on state banks of issue it places the fixed volume of money in the hands of monopolists giving them the power of contraction and expansion at will. Thus has the protection of life, liberty and property guaranteed in the constitution been taken away from the masses and increased power and protection and privileges placed in the hands of the money classes. For the reformation of these wrongs I joined the Farmers' Alliance and endeavored with many of the best and truest men in our country to educate the people upon these subjects and to have them demand of their representatives a reformation of the laws touching these things and restore to the people the rights and privileges of a constitutional government.

I believe these reforms will yet result and privileges of a constitutional government.

I believe these reforms will yet result from the education of the masses if the result of some of the great mistakes now being made can be averted.

As the leading politicians of the country were more and more persistent in their war upon the alliance, the demand for a party based upon alliance demands grew and strengthened. The sentiment grew stronger under the fostering care and influence of the politicians and demagogues until it culminated in the formation of spolitical party, the platform of which was made to fit the whim of every discontented element and in which a simple demand of "Equal rights to all and special privileges to none" would be as hard to locate as the tail end of an April rainbow. I am in the fullest sympathy with the men who compose the people's party, and know that they fullest sympathy with the men who of pose the people's party, and know that it are suffering from oppression and finistrale, but I am sure they are in wrong line to remedy these evils.

Some months ago, I wrote you an a cle upon state banks and sand in it that was the quickest and most practical r to financial relief. I was severely cised for my position on that matter by the very men such a system we relieve, and they invariably demanded the government issue money on land.

by the very men such a system would relieve, and they invariably demanded that the government issue money on land. The country is now suffering from a money earristocracy, and God knows that is bad enough but hay He deliver us from a landed arristocracy. But few of the men whom we desire to help own any land at all. Most of them are renters and yet in the demand for government loans on lands they would build up a landed plutocracy which would forever prevent the poor man from owning land. With such a state of affairs as would be germinated here by the enslavment of farmers by landed plutocrats would have anarchy so hot that one would be glad to go to hades to cool off.

The real reforms for which the alliance was organized have been lost sight of and the effort is being made to right one error by the enactment of others. The result has been that the alliance has about died and the new party is its executor, while, horror of horrors, the republican party stands read to be its legatee. The deceased and the executor will not be profited, but the legate will be greatly strengthened. Can Georgians longer afford to trifle with this matter? I cannot. I am not a politician, I am not an office seeker, but an allianceman, who loves that order and who loves reform, an' who knows the sufferings of our oppressed people.

The people's party candidate for presisted could not be elected if he were to carry every state in which that party is running as electoral ticket. With this fact staring in the face, can we afford to give our state to our enemies because we cannot get what electoral vote of Georgia in the name the republican party.

Are you opposed to the national banking system? The republican party is the father of national banks.

Are you opposed to monopoly? The republican party is the party of contraction, monopoly and oppression.

Are you opposed to a high tariff which robs the poor to fatten the rich? The republican party is the advocator of high tariff.

Are you in favor of the supremacy of the Anglo-Saxon manhood and woman hood of Georgia? If so, beware of the party which would disgrace our civilization

A word to every manager of elections overly good citizen of Georgia who experts go to the polis on next Wednesday, Atlanta's financial condition has always a the pride of her people.

But today Atlanta people are prouder an ever of the solidity of their home of the credit of their government.

The year's work, financially, has pracelly closed and the city treasury is in a lost healthy condition, so healthy indeed there will be no necessity even thought of a quaranta against debt. The finance committee the general council composed of Mr. the chairman, Mr. Shropshire, Mr. Turge, Mr. Boyd and Mr. Sawtell has completed its last report.

Mr. Boyd and Mr. Sawtell has com-ted its last report.

THE OFFICER SHOT.

A Lively Chase After an Escaped Prisoner, Who Raised a Racket at the Play.

Who Raised a Racket at the Play.
Oscar Askew, a gingercake-hued dude cut a lively figure in a sensational little episode last night about 10 o'clock.
Oscar Askew last night went to see the "Two Old Cronies". He enjoyed the play and at the end of the second act started out for a drink. On the way out he got noisy and impudent and cursed several white men. He got very boisterous, and a white man took him by the arm and aid: "I'll just turn you over to an officer." a white man took him by the arm and said: "I'll just turn you over to an officer."
With an oath Askew jerked loose and throwing his hand to his hip pocket drew a knife, and covering the nien with it ran off, followed by several gentlemen.

He ran out Walton street like the wind and Patrolman Moon joined in the chase. The negro ran to James street, and finding himself hard pressed by the officers leaped into a yard and hid in some shrubbery. Patrolman Moon followed and collared the dude. With some difficulty the officer carried the negro to the nearest signal box.

troiman Moon followed and collared the dude. With some difficulty the officer carried the negro to the nearest signal box. which is located at the artesian well. While standing waiting for the wagon the negro made a sudden dash for liberty, and tore loose from Patrolman Moon's grasp.

He ran down Edgewood avenue, a big crowd following close on his heels. Patrolman Wilson joined Patrolman Moon in the spirited chase. Askew proved himself to be a lively sprinter and he led a good race. As the negro started off, Patrolman Moon drew his revolver and fired at him. The negro ran until he reached Wheat street and went pacing up that thoroughfare. By this time Patrolman Powell had joined the pursuing party and was on the nero's heels. Again the negro leaped into a yard and the officer followed. The negro ran into a house through an open window where he was caught by Patrolman Powell. He was then securely handcuffed and carried to the police station.

Atlanta Is to Have a New Upholstery Com-An application for a charter was filed in the clerk's office yesterday morning.
The incorporators are Isaac H. Haas, Emerald C. Guthman, Lewis Newelt, Otto Schwab and Oscar Poppenh-imer.
They desire to be incorporated under the firm name of the American Upholstery Company, and will ask for the usual term of chartered privileges.

The capital stock of the company is $50,000, and they ask for the privilege of increasing the same to $100,000.

The character of the new corporation will be that of a genuine manufactory.

The Sad Story of a Tragedy Bear Can Be Established on Peters and Fair Let Every Good Democrat Go Out and Lithonia, Ga.

THE FATHER WAS AWAY FROM HOME.

A Jury Investigated the Matter and Patrick Burns and Wife Were Bound Over to the Superior Court.

A horrible tragedy was enacted in the quiet town of Lithonia yesterday morn-

It is not very often that the simple annals of that quiet little village are marred by the commission of such a crime as that which will shock the world of humane readers this morning.

The story is grouped about the death of a little boy and the cause of his death was the brutal treatment which he received from the lash of his temporary guardian. A short while ago the child's father, hard-working man by the name of Mi-chael McLane, left the town of Lithonia and set out for a lengthy visit to Pennsylvania

He had previously suffered the loss of his wife, who was an inmate, for several days, of the Grady hospital, and who was a woman of strong maternal affections. Though her death was a great loss to her husband it was even a greater be-reavement to her children who were deprived of her parental love and teachings, and who, had they known her protection, would never have figured in such a tragedy as that which has caused the death of one of them and shaded the joy of the other young heart forever.

Before leaving for Pennsylvania, Mr. McLane began to cast about for a suitable person to whose care he could leave his children until his return home.

Finally he encountered the man for whom he was looking and the name of that man was Patrick Burns. Patrick Burns enjoyed the reputation of being a clever man and without distrusting his guardianship in the least, Michael McLane set out for Pennsylvania, leaving the children in the care of their new protector. He gave but little thought to his children after he left, except to think of them in a fond way as being properly cared for by Patrick Burns and his good wife. No suspicion entered his heart and no voice for a moment whispered into his ears, "Michael McLane, beware!"

Time wore on and still the father remaired away from home. News was scarce from the Quaker state, and weeks went by without bringing any tidings from Michael McLane. Perhaps it was a check or a bill that old

Patrick was looking for, and failing to get his money, he was angry-perhaps not that bad-was sorely grieved and disappointed. Finally the little boy Mike died. It was Mike, a bright little fellow, and only a day or two before so full of fun and life, had gone up to meet his mother in the shadows of the great white throne.

The death of the little child was so sudden that an inquest was held. An examination of the body revealed that the child had been terribly beaten and that stripes covered his back from his neck to his feet.

A verdict of murder at the hands of Patrick Burns was rendered by the jury after short deliberation.

Patrick Burns and his wife were both arrested and after a preliminary hearing arrested and after a preliminary hearing were bound over to the superior court to answer to the charge of murder. They are now lodged in the jail at Decatur.

It was a brutal and outrageous case of whipping, and the doctors who testified that the flogging was the cause of his death were Dr. Chupp and Dr. J. A. A sadder tragedy never startled the good people of Lithonia.

The Atlanta Law School Will Open with Full Attendance Tomorrow.

Full Attendance Tomorrow.

The Atlanta Law school will begin its second annual session tomorrow morning. Seats were assigned yesterday evening to several young men who expect to matriculate, and Mr. B. H. Lee will be at the school again this afternoon and tonight for the purpose of assigning additional seats, to those who wish to attend.

The school has been steadily growing, and the work of the last session has been heartily approved by every court into which the young graduates of the institution have been admitted.

The faculty as a unit is enthusiastic over the outlook, and have reasons to be congratulated upon the legree of popularity, to which the school has attained.

Notes Irom Griffin election, is Griffin's boom as a cotton market. While other markets, the past few days, have been paying from 7 to 71-4 cents, our merchants have paid from 71-4 to 71-2 cents for middling cotton. Griffin has become the central cotton market of this entire section of country and notwithstanding the season is late and the crop short, the receipts have been very large. As a consequence business is brisk and all branches of trade feel an increased security. creased security.

THE FALLEN WOMEN HOMELESS YET, THE FINAL RALLY IN FULTON.

And the Question Still Perplexing the Council-Mr. Norcross Council-Mr. Norcross Talks.

Mrs. Wolf will not establish a home for fallen women on the corner of Peters and Fair streets, but she may reside in that big two-story building if she occupies it as a residence only.

residence only.

That's what the general council has decided and the decrees of that body genercided and the decrees of that shall stand.

A long petition, it was, and one well worded and full of argument the people residing in that section of the city sent in against the establishment of the home. The members of the council listened to the paper with greatest interest and when the clerk laid it away Mr. Turner said:

"I move that that petition be granted."

"I move that that petition be granted."
Rev. Virgil Norcross and Mrs. Wolf were in the chamber and the rules were suspending pending to allow the minister, whose re-cord upon the subject has been made, to

"I would like to know," began Mr. Nor-cross, "whether this body has any knowl-edge that this home is to be used as a home r fallen women?"
"That petition is all the tangible information we have on the subject," said Mayor Pro Tem. Rheinhardt. "We have been informed," said Mr. Hill

"that the house was rented for that pur-"that the house was rented for that purpose and that the people moved in, to conduct a home of that kind."

"The people over there," said Mr. Turner, "are opposed to such a refuge among them and I think we ought to nip it in the bud, stop it now."

"But the lady wants to use it for dwelling purpose," remarked Mr. Norcross.

"We can't object to her living there," said Mayor Pro Tem. Rheinhardt, "and that petition don't cover the ground that way. But it does cover the ground if it is sought to establish a home there for fallen wo-

Mr. Hill moved to refer the matter to the police committee.
"I can't entertain any motion," said Mayor Pro Tem. Reinhardt, "while Mr. Nor

cross has the floor." "Can Mrs. Wolfe take my place then and "Can Mrs. Wolfe take my place then and tell what she wants," asked Mr. Norcross.
"No," was the mayor pro tem.'s answer.
It was rather post ive and it seemed to fire Mr. Norcross. Without further preliminary remarks he launched out, and with force and logic presented his side of the case. He referred to the opposition against the home in every locality the lady had selected.

the home in every locality the lady had selected.

"I wouldn't," said the minister, "object to its location in front of my church and should be giad to have them come in. Why not let them locate their home there? Thre they would be in closer proximity to a church where good influences would be thrown around them and where they might be shown the right way out of their trouble. Peters street has supported and sustained gates which open into hell—barrooms for years. Is this any worse? I have had to stand this and worse than this right around my church for eighteen years. If I go out and save a girl what is to become of her without a home of this kind. There is no place for her. I have fought houses on ill fame and fought them hard because I know they are wrong, but I want to and howe always wanted to rescue the unfortunate immates whose sins are due to men."

Mr. Norcross made a strong appeal for the faller women and for those seeking to establish the home.

Mrs. Wolfe followed, outlining the work she contemplates.

she contemplates.

W. F. Westley, a member of the Baptist church just across the street from the church just across the street from the building, asked permission to address the council.

"I am surprised at Mr. Norcross," he said. "Why only a few weeks ago he was working more vigorously than any one in Atlanta to put this same flock to flight—this same flock he now wants to put on us. I live out there and I tell you we don't want this home there, and we won't have it if we can prevent it. Only a short time. live out there and I tell you we don't want this home there, and we won't have it if we can prevent it. Only a short time ago he wanted to drive these poor women not only away from the neighborhood of his church, but out of town. Now see him. He wants to thrust them upon us. Wants them to leave his own locality and come upon us. We don't want 'em there. I think we have hs too many women missionaries in Atlanta lately. We have enough ladies here to attend to our own work without sending out for strangers. If Mr. Norross wants these women near him no one objects. He has plenty of property, some with houses and others without. Let them go there."

The petition lightly norress.

There will be a glorious rally of the faithful and eloquence, wit and democratic en-thusiasm will be the features. Everybody should be there. There will be enjoyment for all.

This rally is to be held under the auspices of the county democratic campaign committee which acts under the direction of the county democratic executive com-

A full programme of speeches has been arranged, and every preparation will be made today for seating thousands of people in the rotunds of the state capitol.

The great democratic gathering which greefed Tom Watson at the state capitol a few nights ago showed plainly enough that the democrats of Fulton know how to rally when they want to, and more than that, they know how to keep things lively when they do rally. So it will be tonight. Among the speakers who will be on the platform tonight are Mr. E. W. Martin, Porter King, Hooper Alexander, Harvey Johnson and R. A. Broyles. They have been heard in Atlanta before, and all those who have heard them know what a general hailstorm of democratic enthusiasm, elo-quence and argument to expect from them tonight at the rally.

This will be the final rally of democrats in Fulton County before the state election. Coming as it does the very night before the great election, it ought to attract every loyal democrat in Atlanta and Fulton county. The boys are already tuning their voices for a great democratic shouting meeting, for that's what they intend to have at the capitol tonight.

Let everybody be on hand. Let every man who can't come send somebody else and send him early. Don't forget.

The place is the capitol.

"DARN THE MOSQUITOES." Atlanta Has Been Scourged by a Plague of the Insects.

Atlanta is now entertaining within her gates another convention.

The delegates have come from every part of the coutry, and they have brought their musical voices to serenade the people during their stay in the city.

They are putting up in every convenient place in Atlanta, and have completely fallen in love with the hospitality of Atlanta.

Their preference for Atlanta however is by no means reciprocated in the responsive feelings that are entertained by the people in Atlanta.

They charge too much for their serenades and the price of their disconsolate melody is blood. They are regulan "Neroes" and as such, they have exacted their tributes of blood without regard to the quality of the flesh.

They are too familiar on short acquaintance, and on the whole Atlanta is tired of the "darned mosquitoes."

Sullivan and Jim Corbett, become an actor, and will reppear at the opera house Wednesday and Thursday night and Thursday matinee in a new comedy, entitled "The Heroic Blacksmith." He has surrounded himself with a specially selected company of comedy performers, and has a sparring partner with him in no less a person than Frank Bosworth, the well known heavy-weight. They give a very scientific set-to, and all the lovers of the manly art of self-defence will have an opportunity of witness ing this great puglistic wonder. A large house is expected and those desiring choice seats should secure them early.

Rome, Ga., October 1.—Editors of Constitution—in regard to the article containing Mr.

H. E. Johnson's letter in your issue of today, I would state that I did not authorize my name to be put to any satement criticising the course of Col. Buck. I wired Mr. Johnson that my name could be used stating action of the state republican convention, and that republicans were not bound to, vote for either party, democratic or peoples at the state elections. I disapprove the following soutence in Mr. Johnson's letter: "as the state conventon took this course we cannot understand why it is that Mr. Buck now proposes to take a different course." I do so because Col. Buck expressly states in his circular letter that it is his individual opinion that republicans should vote with the people's party if they vote at all in the state election. We therefore repudiate the statement that Col. Buck has acted as a czar, since we are still free to vote as we please in state affairs. The negroes will be somewhat divided in this state election but they will vote for no man who will not pledge himself to treat the negro hereafter as a man and citizen. Please do me the jusice to print the above and oblige.

THE NEW YORK MARKET.

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

New York, October 3.—The volume of business at the stock exchange was somewhat larger than usual of late, and a much firmer tone caracterized the dealings. The short interest was largely responsible for the change in the condition of the market. Thus New England without any new developments in regard to the company's affairs or any authoritative statement about the alleged deal with Reading, scored a further advance of 21-8 per cent. The sise was assisted, if not caused entirely by a sharp demand to cover short contracts. The same is true of Chicago gas, which advanced 21-4 per cent and closed within 1-8 per cent of the highest price. A heavy short interest was created recently on the institution of a sult for the appointment for receivers of the property, and large New York holders of the stock rushed the price up when the bears attempted to cover. While these movements were in progress the general list was bought freely, and such stocks as Burlington and Quincy, Rock Island, Union Pacific, Atchison, Louisville and Nashville, St. Paul, Western Union, Northern Pacific, preferred, and Reading closed with net gains of 3-4 to 1.5-8 per cent, with the greatest advances in Reading and Louisville and Nashville. Many specialties were dealt in more extensively than for some time, and with a few exceptions were decidedly higher. Pittsburg and Western preferred rose 3.3-4 per cent, Tennessee Coal and fron 3, Denver and Rio Grande, preferred 21-2. Evansville and Terre Haute and United States express 11-2 and general electric 11-8 per cent. Among the industrials, other than Chicago gas, there was considerable activity in American sugar and distilling and cattle feed. The former rose 2 and the latter 11-8. J. S. Rache & Co.'s Stock Letter.

By Private Wire to R. W. Martin, Manager.

NEW YORE, October 1—Europe gave an impetus to the market today, although their purchases did not amount to much, still their buying today gave backbone to the bulls in this market, and it was surprising to see how very easily prices were advanced. New England opened at an advance of 1 per cent and maintained it well during the day, closing at about the highest point. In Gas the bears took their medicine and covered upwards of 16,000 shares. There is still some short interest left, but the great part of it has been rovered. The street does not look upon the threatened law suit as anything of importance, and as long as they are carning, as we hear, about 5 per cent on the stock, holders need not be straid. Of course it will move forward and backward, and will for that reason be a great tock to trade with. The market has had a great deal to contend with, and we think the situation is on the mend. There was of course some short stock covered, but the buying for that account was inconsiderable in somparison with the buying for long account. The corn crop is practically secure, and is beyond the damage of froat with a crop of 1,700,000,000 bushels. The roads will have plenty to earn, besides the commercial business is better than ever before. J. S. Bache & Co.'s Stock Letter.

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular.

NEW YORK, October 3.—The continued light receipts at the conthern ports caused an advance in the arrival market in Liverpool of 495-546 from Saturday's closing prices. Spinners were not apparently so much affected as the Liverpool merchants, for they took but 1,560 bales out of the 19,000 bales. Our market opened at an advance of 16 points on the near and 15 points on December deliveries. A subsequent advance of 263 points occurred when the light receipts as Savannal and New Orleans were peported, January touching 8.03, the highest point reached on this advance. Although the market for some time has had every indication of advancing, based on the light merement, business appears to be limited to the cotton trade. This is a very unusual feature of the stination. If the receipts continue upon the present scale a higher market is expected by all connected with the trade. Although the continental spinners hold only a small amount of forward shipments, they do not appear at all anxious over the light movement, and have not appeared in the markets as buyers. Nevertheless the situation continues very firm, and the temper of the trade is more buillash than ever. Though the receipts of cotton at Houston and New Orleans exceeded the earlier estimates, the temper of the market continues very bullish and closes firm at the highest quotations of the day. Higher prices are universally predicted by all in trade. Even the old time shorts have covered, and in many instances joined the bull ranks. Under some conditions of the market this universal temper might be a weaknesses, but with the light receipts sustaining these opinions there is great strength in this unanimity of opinion and action. Estimates of the movement for the week will probably be exceeded, as the advance increases the yeceipts at the primary markets, but the comparison with last season is so remarkable that the ratio of increase is without any effect.

There were periods during the day when considerable realizing took place, but in the main there was a steady and a good undertene throughout, values closing at the best prices touched. The feeling here, as we have said, on several cocasions recently generally inclines to be builtish. We ourselves can only consider values reasonable if any faith whatever is to be placed in the reports which are daily reaching us. We shall doubtless have reactions from time to time, but if the world remains under the impression that now exists we shall ultimately do still better. Receipts continue very small; and, though admitting that the erop is late, it still ought to aggregate a larger quantity than seems to be marketed now. There is but one feature which is somewhat discouraging, and that is the conditions in Manchester which, with an advance in the raw material, are hardly likely to improve, although this, as has been very frequently the case before, may change when least expected. Here trade in the textile industry is certainly good, and such mills as we are acquainted with are well in hand with orders, so that on this side at least there is nothing adverse that can be seen at the moment. ng adverse that can be seen at the moment.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Chicago, October, 3.—In provisions pritcularly, the buils were the masters today. The October ribs and lard deals were running at the old stand, notwithstanding efforts of a mysterious stranger to transfer them to a justice court. Compared with Saturday night, October deliveries this evening showed advances of 17 1-2c. for pork, 15c. for ribs and 7 12c. for lard Grain markets all closed with slight gains. The most important matter brought to the attention of the provision trade was the heavy difference between the stocks of short ribs on October 1, as officially reported, and the estimates made by packers in advance. They amounted to nearly 31,000,000 pounds as aginst prevolus outside estimates of 24,000,000 pounds. That matter was almost as much of a puzzle as the identity of the individual named Fousch, who seeks to have Wright and Cudahy arrested for running a corner. It was calculated by some experts on the floor that, taking receipts and shipments of hogs and meats for the month, and receipts and shipments of hogs and meats for the month, and receipts and shipments of hogs, published stocks showed møre meat in store by some 30,000,000 pounds than could be finade from the hogs slaughtered Stocks reported on hand indicate smaller supplies of mess pork than generally expected, while the quantity of lard was about as anticipated It was expected that large stocks of short rib sides would cause a break in the market, and this encouraged offering of other speculative articles rather freely at the opening. Temporarily prices ruled slightly lower, but it was demonstrated that a good inquiry prevailed and a decidedly stronger feeling was developed. Shorts bought moderately, and prices advanced on some of the leading articles, though outside figures were not supported to the close.

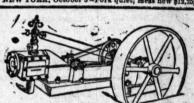

The leading laures ranges as follows in Chicago today. Grain and Provisions.

"I have Mayor Hemphill's veto to the sunday delivery of parcels," said Clerk Woodward as he finished calling the roll. The paper was short and to the point. The mayor simply said that he declined the ordinance allowing the company sign the ordinance allowing the company work on Sunday because he thought in

It almost before the paper had quit flutring another petition from the same commy asking for the privilege of delivering eams, flowers and other dainties was d. The petition was couched in words which poets would have reveled. But r. Turner is no poet, and as the clerk was ing the paper the senior fifth-warder

"That's about the same thing we had before. I move to table it."
And tabled the petition was.

Atlanta's Elevated Railway. Ex-Governor R. R. Bullock, ex-City En frank J. Hoyle, Price E. Murray, Ulysses Lewis, E. M. Blalock and E. L. Corth-nell's names were attached to a petition for mission to erect an elevated railroad in anta and for other purposes.

"Is that that two-story depot we have been hearing about?" asked Mr. Northen.
"Those are the same gentlemen, I think," said Dr. Turner. "But I think that this affects the interest of too many people, while it may prove a great advantage to a few. I move that it all be referred to the special committee already raised on that subject and to the city engineer, eity attorney and the committee on electrical control."

To the tax committee the petition went.
"Don't Take My All."

Mon Bridwell, Jr.; relieved the monotony of the meeting by the unique and catchy verbiage of a petition he presented.

The Junior Bridwell's paper read:
To the mayor and council of the city of Atlanta, rentleman.

To the mayor and counci of the city of Atlanta, gentleman.

May it please your honor: I have been a loyal subject of your domain for forty-two years, eight months, two hundred and eighteen days; and although your mandates (some of them) have been rough and severe, nevertheless I have always, regardless of cost and trouble, compiled with them. Your last mandates, falling so thick and fast, stagger me, and would any other old man, on the verge of the graye, depending solely on a pittance of daily labor to live on and pay such enormous sings to please and advance the royalty of others.

And worse still; I am informed that you are agoing to take (ruin) off of my lot for widening the street—how much. God only inows. I ask your honors to hold up everything until you get through—widening streets and all, so I can borrow the whole at once.

You know it will take a long time to work out such a sum. I am old physically. In the name of God the Father, God the Son, God, the Holy Spirit—the one God—I ask you to grant me time to bestir myself, and not crush me by piece-meals, all at once. Judge Hillyer, president of the board of water commissioners, stepped within the sharmed circle.

"We want," said he, "permission to secure additional legislation so we can provide for the sale of more bonds if we find it necessary to increase the water supply."

Judge Hillyer then described the work that had been done on the new water system and showed where $250,000 mare money could be profitably and judiciously spent if it became necessary. The judge claimed that the money could be most advantageously used, and that the water system could be made faultless for years. He wanted an additional reservoir, an additional engine at pumping station No. 2, and an additional main from the numping station into the sity. For all this the judge submitted an estimate reading: mate reading: mated cost of additional reser-

There was a quiet but very important meeting of the lady directors of the Jennie D. Inman orphanage yesterday morning. They met in the parlor of the home and a full attendance of the ladies was present.

a full attendance of the ladies was present.

The object of the meeting was to arrange the preliminaries for the opening of the home to-morrow and to adopt the constitution and by-laws.

It was decided however to waive the adoption of a constitution and by-laws for the present, in view of the urgent needs of the home that forced themselves upon their immediate consideration, and devote themselves to a discussion of matters in hand.

Accordingly the equipments of the home themselves to a discussion of matters in hand.

Accordingly the equipments of the home in the way of furniture and other household necessities, in readiness for the matron who will assume her duties to-morrow morning, was carefully considered.

Already the home is conveniently furnished with much of the household ware that was formerly used by Mr. Imman, but still there is need of several effects that will be provided by the ladies today.

The work of raising the funds that are needed for the home goes bravely on and the ladies who have taken upon themselves the duty of soliciting contributions, have everywhere been cordially received.

The amount is steadily growing and the sum that is needed will no doubt be realized before the sun to-morrow evening slants down upon the western side of the orphanage.

slants flown upon the western successful and orphanage.

It is likely that the children of Atlanta, as a means of supporting the home, will be asked to contribute in their simple way towards the creation of a "dime fund" for the benefit of the little arphans.

No doubt every boy and girl in Atlanta will be glad to divide their candy money with the little children of their own age, who have no fathers or methers.

The idea is a good one and if adopted specialties.

New features and new people are introduced this year. Professor Blatzmeyer and O'Donnovan Duff are in the hands of E. M. Hart and John Sheehan. These comedians sustain the reputation of their predecessors, do as many ridiculous things and make as much laughter as any comedians have ever done in these grotesque, eccentric parts. Miss Gussey Hart sang and danced and wore striking costumes and won the favor of the whole audience. Four little Quakeresses in black gave the widows' dance, and the air was filled with fast flying streaks of black as undistinguishable as the spokes in a bicycle going full tilt down hill.

The idea is a good one and if adopted by the board, it will ensure the orphanage of a nice little income, and will be a source of genuine pleasure and satisfaction to many young children in Atlanta.

The home will surely open its doors to morrow morning. That has been fully determined. The number of inmates however, has not yet been settled, as the applications for admission have not yet been considered.

There will be another meeting of the board this morning at the orphanage and the question as to who shall be received will then be taken up.

It is likely that the home will start out with fourteen inmates.

as the spokes in a bicycle gaing run the down hill.

Though this feature did not differ essentially from similar dances repeatedly seen on DeGive's stage, the spectators developed a weakness for it and kept calling the widows back until they were tired out. Lindsay Morrison delivered a recitation and being encored recited an epic entitled "Casey at the Bat." which was particularly appreciated by directors of the national outdoor game. There were several other people in the cast nearly as clever as these. They gave a rollicking performance which kept up a storm of laughter until the finale. The piece will be given at a matinee today and again tonight.

THE HANDWRITING IS ON THE WALL

And Only Colonel A. G. Daniel, He of the Boundless Enthusiasm, Can Take Hope Out of the Deep Gloom.

The scene at the third party headquarters on the eve of the greatest political battle ever fought in Georgia, was not very inspiring yesterday afternoon.

Gloom, dense, impenetrable and awful, hung over the place where all the third party's battles have been planned. Only the heart of Colonel A. G. Daniel was hopeful. He took a bright view of things, and modestly but the third party state tickand modestly put the third party et's majority at 30,000. But none of the other third party men subscribed to the rosy views of Colonel

All through the day a group of third par ty men was gathered in the office of The Alliance Farmer, discussing the situation. That group wore the air of dejection and defeat, and the fate of their party on Wednesday was written on their faces as plainly as the as written on their races as plainly as the handwriting on the wall.

In the group was Mr. A. W. Ivey, candidate on the third party ticket for comptroller general. Mr. Ivey was asked for his estimate of the vote of his ticket. Mr. Ivey was thoughtful a moment before answering.

"Well," said Mr. Ivey, "the democrats may outcome us. If they do they will beat us. They are buying the degroes and doing everything they can to beat us. While they are going to cheat us in some places, I think it will not be anything like it was in Alabama." bama."

"Oh, yes it will," exclaimed Dr. Eli Griffin, who was present and who is a brother-in-law of Congressional Candidate Talia-ferro. "It'll be just as bad. They are going to steal—they are going to steal—they are going to steal."

Mr. D. J. Sanders, of Tom Watson's paper, took a more conservative view. He said he believed the third party would elect a majority of the members of the legislature, but wouldn't venture a guess as to the state ticket.

but wouldn't venture a guess as to the state ticket.

Mr. W. Y. Carter, of Elbert, said he could vouch for Elbert and Hart counties, but wouldn't venture a guess as to the rest of the state and the fate of the state ticket.

Colonel Daniel was seized with astonishment at the sloomy view his colleagues took of the third party's prospect, and out of his boundless enthusiasm he spoke with hope and cheer enough. "Some people put it at 60,000," said he solemnly, "but I want to be on the safe side always and I set it down at 30,000. Just watch those figures. Something's going to drop. What would your people say if I were to tell them that Fulton county was going for the people's party?" party?"

None of Colonel Daniel's co-workers share in his hopeful view. Already they are scattering in defeat and dismay.

are scattering in defeat and dismay.

The Last of the Campaign,

The last speaking of the third party campaign will be at Kennesaw mountain today. A barbecue will be spread and asseeches will be made by Cyclone Davis, Colonel W. L. Peek, Thad Pickett and others. Free trains will be run out from Marietta to the grounds.

THE DIRECTORS MEET.

Everything is Lovely and the Carnival Goose

Hangs High.

There was a meeting of the Carnival Association at headquarters yesterday at high noon.

Some very important business came up for transaction and many satisfactory adjustments were made looking to a complete preparatior for the festivities of the carnival.

Captain John A. Miller was selected to take charge of the day as chief marshal when the carnival begins.

A committee was appointed to confer with Colonel Calbonn about the military and to ascertain how many companies will take part in the parada. Mr. George Brown was elected a director.

It was decided that a secret organization be formed at once to take entire charge of the carnival ball. This secret directory will send out the invitations to the ball and will operate mysteriously through the postoffice. The names of those in charge will never be known.

house last night and called itself a republican meeting.

The little handful of people scattered about on the seats in various parts of the courtroom looked lonesome and sleepy, and when they did summon courage to yell the echo frightened them and they would glance in a scared way over their shoulder.

It was a Buck circular endorsement meeting, but if Mr. Buck, who was present and spoke, got any comfort out of the endorsement he is easily comforted.

Mr. Buck, Smith Easly, C. C. Wimbish and others spoke. A vote was taken on the Buck circular and it was endorsed, The meeting lacked sadly in numbers and enthusiasm.

On Wednesday evening last at the residence of Mrs. Lewis, on Lowe street, Miss Dora Meaders was united in marriage to Mr. John Thompson. The ceremony was perferned by Rev. Mr. Belk. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Thompson left for a trip through northeast Georgia.

On Sunday afternoon at 6 o'clock a very presty marriage ceremony was performed at the home of Captain A. J. Moss, 579 Woodward avenue. It was the marriage of his daughter, Miss Mary Alma Moss, to Mr. Harry T. Wells, of Madison, Ind. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Bell, of St. Paul's church, in the presence of a number of friends of Miss Moss. Mr. Wells is a prosperous and promising young business man of Madison, Ind. Miss Moss is a gifted and popular young lady of this city, who numbers her friends by the score. Many handsome and valuable presents were presented to the young couple by admiring friends. READY FOR WORK

The Democracy of Bibb County Has a Wind-Up Rally.

THE DAY IN THE CENTRAL CITY.

The Macon and Atlantic to Be Sold-Bob Berner as a Senatorial Candidate— The Schools Open.

Macon, Ga., October 3.—(Special.)—Bibbs democracy turned out in force this evening to hear a little sound democratic talk and to transact business it was a most satis-factory meeting from beginning to end. It proved that Bibb is solid, a fact that has never been doubted; and it proved that her people are fully alive to the importance of hard work and democratic enthusiasm.

The meeting, which was held under the auspices of the Young Men's Democratic club, was called to order by its president, Mr. Mintor Wimberly, who briefly stated its object. Hon. C. L. Bartlett spoke for about half an hour, and, as usual, talked sound sense that was well received. During Mr. Bartlett's address, Hon. A. O. Bacon, candidate for the legislature from Bibb, just back from his service with the national convention at New York, entered the hall. He was greeted with enthusi-astic applause. Major Bacon had just ar-rived on the train reaching Macon at 8 o'clock. He was met at the depot by a committee from the club and was at once escorted to the hall.

When Mr. Barlett took his sent Major Bacon was called for. He spoke briefly, but it was to the point. He had just returned from the front, he said, with the dust of travel still upon him. He was glad to meet the young democrats at this time. There was a time in the history of the state when the work had to be done by young men and now again they would have to rely upon now again they would have to rely upon them.

"The whole state is in a state of ferment," he said. "All along the line the question is, how big shall the majority be? and the outlook is that this will be the biggest vote ever polled in Georgia."

After urging on the democrats of Bibb to turn out, Major Bacon said there were two reasons why every democrat should vote. First, to put beyond the possibility of doubt the success of the state and county ticfets, and second, that the state of Georgia may roll up such a majority as will show to the north, south, east and west that the third party has little or no effect upon the Enspire State of the South. The state of Alubana which has always heretofore been solid is now doubtful. Alabana is the daughter of Georgia. Alabama is in sympathy with Georgia and what Georgia does will effect the vote in Alabama. With Alabama ost, the presidential election is doubtful. Therefore, he urged, let every Georgian feel that his vote will not only help to preserve democracy in Georgia, but that it will strengthen and encourage Alabama. Major Rucon ended with an elequent appeal to the democrats to turn out and vote. He said that the friends of the democrats might struggle at times like this and start off in places, but after all there were but two parties and the strenglers would come back.

Major Bacon was followed by Hon. Robert Hodges, Mr. Marion Harris and Hon. John T. Boifeuillet, after which the meeting got down to plain business.

In the city today Orange street opened a full house, every class being complete and every place taken.

The high school opened with 175 girls and 105 boys. At East Macon the first and second classes were dismissed for a few days until their rooms are ready. Second street school is full. South Macon school is comfortably crowded.

The pupils at the Alexandria school were dismissed until Thursday, the improvements on the building not being completed.

The new Whittle school building facing High park will not be opened until next Friday.

The building which has just been completed is one of the most commodious and most sensible buildings in the state. It is beautifully located in the residence portion of the city, and faces Hill park, one of the prettiest pieces of city terracing that has been seen in the city.

Berner as Senator.

Berner as Senator

Berner as Senator.

The Macon Evening News claims to speak from the card when it says that Hon. Robert L. Berner is a candidate or will be a candidate for the United States senatorship. The News this afternoon says:

In a quiet way Mr. Berner has felt around to see what chance he stands for the position, and he has met with enough encouragement to speak of the matter to some of his intimate friends.

Mr. Berner will have sufficient time to make a canvass. Senator Colquitt's term does not expire until March, 1895, and the election is a little over two years off.

Everybody in the state is either acquainted with Bob Berner personally or by reputation. He was a candidate for congress in the last primary, and went out of the race by agreement with Mr. Cabaniss, an opponent from his own county. The agreement was that whichever of them carried the home county the other would leave the field for the sake of harmony.

Cabaniss defeated Berner by two macity which settled the matter so far as fir. Berner was concerned.

More Beer for Macon.

Charley Miller, of the Chattanooga Brewing Company, is in the city again. Mr. Miller was formerly city editor of The Chattanooga Times and was one of the finest, as his work will show. But as general manager of the Chattanooga brewery Mr. Miller is a bigger success than he was as a journalist.

The brewing company has purchased a lot at the head of First street on the East Tennessee railroad and will at once erect a cold storage building. Mr. Miller admits that he is taking big risks when he puts himself in such strong opposition with the Macon Brewing Company, but he says that he is content to try conclusions.

The residence of Mr. R. H. Smith on Orange street, was entered on Saturday night and burglarized. The burglar or burglars, appropriated everything the pantry contained and then left with their booty. They made no effort to enter the main body of the house but confined their depredations to the pantry. Mr. Smith was forced to borrow enough for Sunday meals. CHARGED WITH CONSPIRACY.

Two of Carroll's Most Prominent Citizen Made Defendants.

Carrollton, aG., October 3.-(Special.)-The announcement this morning that war-rants have been sworn out for the arrest of Colonel Felix N. Cobb, one of the leading awyers of Carrollton, and Judge John S. Cook, an old and highly respected justice of the peace who is now seventy years old, for conspiracy against the United States government, caused a big sensation. It is understood that the warrants were sworn out by direction of United States Marshal Steve R. Cochran.

It seems that a certain affidavit is at the It seems that a certain affidavit is at the bottom of the whole business. Colonel Cobb has been representing a number of people before the United States court and John Terrell and A. J. Craven have been witnesses against certain clients of Colonel Cobb. Later Colonel Cobb was employed to prosecute one of the witnesses for a crim to prosecute one of the witnesses for a crime in this county and John Terrell was jailed. Terrell's brother went to Colonel Cobb and requested him to write an affidavit for his brother who was in jail to sign, in which his brother who was in fail to sign, in which he desired to say that he, Terrell, swore falsely before United States Commissioner Gaston. Colonel Cobb was repeatedly requested to prepare the papers, which he did and Terrell signed it before Judge Cook.

Steve R. Cochran, a deputy United States Marshal, make some remarks about the affidavit, and he and Colonel Cobb had a fight in the courthouse here, which would have resulted farelly, had not friends interfered. In the mayor's court Colonel Cobb was declared justifiable and Cochran was fined $8.

It was then that the warrants for conspiracy were sworn out against Colonel Cobb and Judge Cook. Colonel Cobb has a host of friends here who are very indignant at his treatment by the United States marshal,

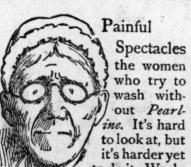

THE WIND UP IN SUMTER.

It Changed Yesterday and Blew the Republican Out of the Kace.

Americus, Ga., October 3.—(Special.)— News reached Americus today from Ella-ville that Tom Smith, the colored republican candidate for the legislature from Schley county, has yielded to the persua-sions of friends and has withdrawn from the race leaving the field to the democrat the race leaving the field to the democrate and third party candidates. This practically assures the success of the democratic ticket, which was in doubt while three candidates were running.

The big rally Saturday in Americus was a pronounced success, able speeches being delivered to a crowd of 2,000 people of all parties and colors by Judge Allen Port, Colonels Blalock, Burkhalter and others. It was in effect a Northen ratification meeting following his endorsement by the republicans yesterday afternoon. It is now believed that this action will insure 1,000 majority for Northen, the state ticket and the democratic legislative candidates in Sumter county. Sumter county.

Resolves to Quit a Life of Shame and

and Is Sent to the Home-The First Two Girls Create a Scene in Churc The Ladies Want Money.

A very pretty sequel to the story of the sudden and voluntary reformation of the two fallen young girls, Hattie Wright and Annie Bayne, was added yesterday.

Another young girl was touched by their story, and like them she determined to quit her life of shame. The girl was Leila Corney an inmate of Belle Burton's place, and she is determined in her resolution to lead a better life. Yesterday morning the girl called at police headquarters and asked for Mrs. Brittain. She found that lady and in tears

"I read in The Constitution," said she, "about Annie Bayne and Hattie Wright, and it made a deep impression on me. I decided that I could stay where I was no longer, and now I want you to help me get back home, where I intend to lead a new life."

She said her people lived in Helena, Ark., and she left there three months ago and came to Atlanta.

Mrs. Brittain promised the girl to help her, and sent her to the home until she can aid in getting the money to send her home.

The two girls Hattie Wright and Annie Bayne had to be carried to the Home of the Friendless yesterday. It was thought that they would leave last night for Brookiyn, but the ladies have not yet succeeded in raising the funds necessary to send them.

them.

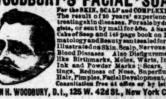

Sunday night, the two girls created quite a touching seene at the Walker street church. They were carried in church by the matron of the house. At the conclusion of Dr. King's sermon, Hattie Wright, the younger of the two girls, 'ho sat midway between the door and altar stood up and asked for prayer. By her side stood Annie Bayne. Both girls were trembling and tearful, and seemed translation one seen but rarely in a life time, and of two outcast women standing up in a church and begging in a trembling, fright-ened way for prayer.

Dr. King made a special prayer for the two young penitents, who ka it weeping beside the kindly matron.

The ladies of the home were very much distressed yesterday because of a lack of funds to send the girls away. They have depended entirely on voluntary contributions to get up the money thinking the to sto get up the money, thinking that the touching story of the girls would excite sympathy and cause a hearty response. They lack $15 yet of having the necessary amount. They will greatly appreciate any contributions that will be sent to them. Any money for the purpose left at The Constitution office will be turned over to the ladies.

There has not been such excitement over political election in this state since away

The lines have been drawn up by the democrats on one side and the third party-ites on the other for the most royal battle of ballots that the people of the Empire State of the South, perhaps, have ever exweeks ago.

Everything that can be done has been done. The democratic army of voters have left their tents and are already in line. It remains for the individual people of the state to declare with their ballots tomorrow apon whose banner victory shall perch.

The leaders have done their part and the state of the st

The leaders have done their part and lone it well.

It is the duty of every democrat in Georgia not only to vote himself in the elction tomorrow, but to induce every other man possible to vote the democratic ticket and save the state of Georgia from political chees, from disunion sought by alien hands and from political disgrace. It remains to be seen whether or not they will do this, but those who know the people of Georgia, know too well that resistance to disunion in the south is deep and settled in their hearts and cannot be overcome by such schemes as these third party agitators have engaged in, or such methods as they have employed.

It is already Obvious that tomorrow will in, or such methods as they have employed. It is already Obvious that tomorrow will show a democratic sweep-up all over Georgie. It is going to be a great majority over third partylism, and the men who have been preaching the new faith in this state will feel tomorrow night very much disposed to applogize for living.

The men who congregated at democratic headquarters yesterday all wore radiant smiles and happy countenances. But there is one thing upon which they all agreed: this fight tomorrow must be the last of its kind in Georgia. The majority for democracy must be so overpowering that it will bury forever and a day every vestige of third party doctrine beneath the daisies, and stamp out all idea of disunion among the people of this good old state.

"We can't continue this business any longer," said one prominent democrat to another. "This thing of arraigning class against class, country against city, farmer against merchant, must be stopped at once, or there will be trouble in the land. The injurious effect of such false doctrine has already shown itself in no doubtful way. A few years ago all was serene and happy in Georgia. The agricultural interests were in a vast state of prosperity, our old red hills and lowlands under the manipulation of scientific culture were blooming like the rose. Every industry bore the stamp of prosperity and progress. Why the change?"

"Political agitators from the western land, with no interest save that of personal gain, have done the work. They have come down upon Georgia and by their agitation have aroused dissension among the people who never knew dissension before. Then false preaching has caused a lack of confidence and the financial condition of the country has been made anything but bright, as a consequence.

"Now we must stop this. We have all been democrats and our fathers before us were country has been made anything but bright, as a consequence.

"Now we must stop this. We have all been democrats and our fathers before us were democrats in times that tried men's souls. The democratic party was the saviour of the south in those days and it is our olly hope for salvation in days to come. I can't believe that the people of this state are yet ready to repudiate the principles of their democracy. I believe they will go to the polls tomorrow with the firm determination to denounce third partyism with such a majority as will never suffer it to rise again."

They Don't Like This.

with such a majority as will never suffer it to rise again."
They Don't Like This.
There is one thing which is turning the bolored voters from the thir party the more they become acquainted with it.
They do not like that part of the third party platform favoring the Australian ballot law, because by that law two-thirds of them will be disfranchised.
The law requires that every man who wotes shall enter a room and be given a ticket which he shall make out himself. If he is educated and can read and write, he can vote. If not, a sworn officer is allowed to make out his ticket for him. But the question that bothers the colored man's mind is "how do I know that that sworn officer will make out the ticket that I tell him to make out." Aye, there's the rub. The negro is satisfied with the present election law of Georgia, which stipulates no such educational qualification.
There are other objectionable features in the third party platform to the colored man, and despite the fact that some republican politicians are using every power to induce the negroes to vote with the third party, they are shrewd enough to see that there must be something behind the scenes, and will continue to vote with "de boss man on the plantation" as they have voted all along, knowing that his interest is theirs.

Just a few More Rallies.

Bob Berner and Emmet Womack go to Marletta this morning where they will peak today. There will be a time of it in Marietta. The democrats have arranged for a big barbecue, to which these men have been invited to come and speak, and the third partyites, learning of their intentions, have decided to keep as many third arry men away from it as possible, and have arranged for another hig barbecue.

Major Basen Is Back.

Major A. O. Bacon, of Macon, who has been in New York for several weeks at work under the direction of the Lational democratic committee, returned yesterday and was in Atlanta a few hours on his way try over, as it appeared at the national committee rooms.

Major Bacon was surrounded by a large number of friends and anxious inquirers all day, who sought to learn from him the exact situation in New York and the coun-try over, as it appeared at the national com-putter rooms.

In response to these inquiries, Major Bacon went on to say: "In my opinion the success of the democratic ticket in New York state is absolutely certain, unless something turns up, not contemplated at this time by the leaders. Of course, in the ups and downs of metropolitan politics, changes may happen that are not expected. The money influence may be handled by the republicans, but while they can get as much money as they did four years 220, they cannot use it as effectively, because the democrats are on the lookout.

"Democrats at headquarters don't feel the slightest doubt about New Jersey and Connecticut. Indiana democrats are hopeful of carrying the state. I think the declaration of Judge Gresham that he will vote for Grover Cleveland will have a great effect towards carrying the state for democracy.

"Especially since he hases his decision on "Especially since he bases his decision on the ground of the necessity of tariff reform and purity of elections. At least five votes in Michigan are certain for democracy.

"In Wisconsin the democratic people are more than hopeful. Democrats from other states express astonishing faith in the prospects for the democratic ticket. I heard a man from California say, that there has been a great change out there, that many millionaires who have hitherto contributed to the republican funds are now democrats."

The republican runds are now denicerats."

Major Bacon says he called on Mr. Cleveland the other day, and declares that he never saw him looking better. He supposed that the reason why he looked so well was because of the absence of care, and the brightness of the democratic outlook.

Major Bacon has been doing good work for the committee, and is prominently identified with the leading democrats at head-outsitiers.

Jane (complacently)—Sure, mum, that's one time, thin, that an eavesdropper heard something good.

We would like to call the attention of the public to something good in a more substantial line. Vegetables and fruits are getting scarce but there are so many new and fresh goods coming in that their place can easily be filled.

We mention a few of the good things ordinarily used which we have just received. What would be nicer for breakfast than any of these.

Our new crop Rolled Cats, Cracked Wheat or Parched Farinose will make a healthy and palatable breakfast dish, Ferris's Boneless Breakfast Bacon is always nice and our New Catch No. 1 Mackerel are enjoyed by all who try them. A Welch "Rare-bit," made from our famous York white Cream Cheese is of itself a feast of good things, and then a cup of our famous Rijamo Coffee, without which no breakfast would be complete.

For Dinner—Terrapin or Green Turtle Soup is an appetising beginning. A Ferris or Dove Ham boiled whole will eat well. Our Deviled Crabs also make an attractive and popular dish. Then Hoyt's fine French Peas, Imported Macaroni and Head Rice are enjoyed by all. The French and Spanish Queen Olives, Cross & B's Chow-Chow Pickles, Sweet Pickle Peaches (we have the home-made) are the best table relishes that can be served. For desserts our California White Cherries with cream or our Sliced Pineapple cannot be improved on except by serving with them some of our fine, fresh and crisp Vanilla Wafers.

For sauces you can choose from a varied list. There is Celery Sauce, L. & P. Worcester Sauce, Chill Sauce, Hotspur Relish, Tomato Catsup and Mayonnaise Dressing. list. There is Celery Sauce, L. & P. Worcester Sauce, Chili Sauce, Hotspur Relish, Tomato Catsup and Mayonnaise Dressing. For Supper—Fresh hot rolls, white and light, like they can be made only from Regal Pat Flour are unexcelled. In light meats there are Chipped Beef, Lunch Tongue, Canned Shrimps (very fine), French Sardines, Salmon Salad and many other. Our Home-made Blackberry Jam and Raspberry and Strawberry Preserves are absolutely pure and have all the home-made flavor, which is liked so well and will please the most fastidious. The new crop New Orleans Syrup (the best of all syrup), is just in season. Our Talo Tea is clear, fragrant and dilicious.

The above is only a suggestion drawn from our large and varied stock. We cordially invite all to come and select for yourselves. You will find a store well stocked with an endless variety of the best and freshest of all kinds of eatables.

Gets Into Two Courts and Is Tried

THE YOUNG MAN GETS OFF LIGHT.

And Patrolman Whitley Is Extremely In-dignant at What He Calle a Mis-carriage of Justice.

Patrolman Jeff Whitley was very indignant yesterday morning when he got up earlier than usual and went down to the superior court room to appear as a witness against Berry Vine, who was charged with assault with intent to murder, when he was told that the Vine's case had already been disposed of and only a very light fine imposed.

The patrolman had expected Vine's case to come up in the superior court under the charge of assault with intent to murder. To his surprise and indignation he found that Vine had been tried in the city court under the comparatively trivial charge of stabbing.

It was a sad miscarriage of justice in view of all the facts in the case, the patrolman thought, yet he was unable to find the responsible parties at whom he might level his righteous wrath. The patrolman bears two ugly scars on his left arm and this fact makes him feel all the more like the label on the bottle-

The history of Berry Vine's misdoings makes a pretty red chapter in the police history of the city, although they cover but a single day. Berry Vine is a young man very well known about town and who has proved here in cover and to the little who has never been in any serious trouble before. He got into some trouble one hot day in July and attacked a street car conductor, a citizen and a patrolman all in one day.

He was arrested and sent to jail, and at the meeting of the grand jury a few days later an indictment for assault with inlater an indictment for assault with intent to murder was found. Not long after this an accusation was sworn out before Solicitor Thomas, of the criminal court of Atlanta, charging Berry Vine with stabbing, a much lighter offense in the eyes of the law. The trial of Vine under the first charge was set for Monday. By a happy trick of fate—for Vine—the case against him for stabbing was called in the criminal court presided over by Judge Westmoreland. Patrolman Whitley was not present at that trial as a witness, and Vine was let off with a nominal fine of $25 and costs.

Patrolman Whitley came down town

Patrolman Whitley came down town early yesterday morning to appear as a witness against Vine in the superior court case when he was told that the case had already been tried. Under the laws of Georgia a man cannot be held answerable to the courts for one charge twice; hence the patrolman's anger. He says the case was a very bad one and that Vine should have been punished heavily.

Where does the blame lie? That is the question he is trying to solve.

Judge Richard H. Clark Takes Up the Criminal Docket.

The criminal branch of the superior court convened in the basement of the courthouse yesterday morning.

Judge Richard H. Clark, in spite of his recent indisposition, appeared to be in his usual good health and there was a look in his eye that told that he intended to deal with the prisoners in an "even handed justice."

with the prisoners in an even manded justice."

Solicitor Charley Hill was in good fighting trim and entered the forensic arena like the true gladiator he has shown himself to be.

Yesterday afternoon, with his clerk, Mr. Sam Venable, he took a drive over the city and enjoyed a good whiff of Atlanta's sweet atmosphere.

He looked as fresh as a mountain breeze

He looked as fresh as a mountain breeze as he entered the courtroom yesterday morning several minutes in advance of Judge Clark and took his seat among the lawyers who were grouped together within the bar.

Judge Clark entered the courtroom and took his seat on the bench promptly at 9:30 o'clock.

"Let us have order Mr. Sheriff," said the judge, and addressing one of the bailiffs he said, "Mr. Bailiff, will you please raise that shutter and give us a little more air?"

Judge Clark is fond of light and fresh air but unhappily he gets neither in the dungeon-like apartment in which he is constrained to hold his court.

It is anything but pleasant in the damp, gloomy, subterranean apartment that looks more like a chamber in Mammoth Cave than a part of Atlanta's temple of justice—but the judge puts up with it admirably under the circumstances.

Yesterday was a busy day and several terday was a busy day and several offenders were dispatched to the peni-

Yesterday was a busy day and several petty offenders were dispatched to the penitentiary.

It is the intention of Solicitor Hill to dispose of the petty cases as soon as possible and not cause them to wait until after the long and difficult trials of the more hardened fraternity.

No dates have as yet been assigned for particular cases and the trial of Porter Stocks for the killing of Alph Cassin which is, of course, the most important trial before the present term of the court, will be called either in the latter part of the week or the first part of next week.

Subtracting the cases that were disposed of yesterday there are still nearly forty-five prisoners who are yet to be tried.
